"Too Little Knowledge":

Bad Distribution

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—In yesterday's issue of the "North-China Daily News," I read with great interest Professor C. E. M. Joad's lecture upon "Science," through which Nature is revealing her secrets to man, and how all the wonderful discoveries which are made seem to be used for destruction. Why this should be, with a world so full of riches for man's comfort is most distressing, yet it is a fact upon looking round, we do see such dire poverty, not only of body, but of mind.

Take for example the wonderful soya bean of which there are about two thousand varieties, two hundred of which have been experimented with success in England, and of which more than sixty millions of the population of the Far East are sustained, this bean having all the qualities for staple food, as well as for industry, yet men, women, and children go hungry, and live in fear of this, and fear of that. Surely the art of distribution has not been learnt yet, for in every land and clime there is abundance for all, for everything is provided for us. "If man could only see" what a pity it is that the wonderful teachings of Aristotle were lost for more than a thousand years, our thoughts toward mankind might have been different.

The great Sage always taught "oh! man know thyself."

J. BASSETT.

Strange Report:

Some Light Wanted

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—On Tuesday evening last, August 28, whilst listening to the BBC Broadcast via Hongkong, I understood the London announcer to say that, due to guerilla activities, foreign residents were evacuating the Hungjao area.

Whereupon I telephoned some of my friends with a view to offering them such temporary accommodation as lay within my power. To my surprise, however, not only did my friends indignantly repudiate any thought of an exodus, but they knew of none of their neighbours contemplating any removal.

Though this report did not appear in your columns, it would be most interesting to learn its origin, and I would be grateful if you can throw any light on the matter.

I am sure you will agree that the dissemination of news in these days of stress should primarily entail the most thorough scrutiny, if only to avoid increasing the anxiety and tension naturally felt by those far away.

The Silly Season:

Support for Office Boy

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—May I reply to the hot little BEAR and at the same time back up your solution (or that of the office boy) to the "Brother and sisters . ." puzzle.

If BEAR will work the conundrum backwards, it will help. "That man's father is my fathers son" is the meat of the problem, the first line only being given to eliminate one possibility. "My father's son" could be either, myself or my brother. But I have no brother, hence it refers to myself. But "that man's father" is also myself, and "that man" could only designate my son.

NOT SO HOT.

Tennis Query:

The Wimbledon Courts

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—Would you or any of your readers be so kind as to settle a much-disputed point between several tennis enthusiasts who wish to know whether the International Tennis Championships such as Wimbledon, Davis Cup matches are played on hard or lawn courts, and if on hard courts, of what nature are the surfaces of such?

We're Not So Dynamic

"Mosquito Day"

By R. L. MEGROZ in "Discovery" (Cambridge)

Although millions of lives have been saved because of the discovery Sir Ronald Ross made on August 20, 1897, not the least important aspect of the anniversary lies in the fact that owing to so-called "economy", sometimes to mere prejudice, and even to dull indifference, it remains true that, as he complained not long before his death in 1932, less than a tenth of the necessary hygienic measures against malaria have been carried out by the responsible authorities.

Ross was a Surgeon in the Indian Medical Service, whose leisure up to 1895 had been largely spent in writing poetry and fiction, and one of his novels still in print—"Child of Ocean"—is a sufficient indication that he might have become one of our leading literary figures of the past half century. As is shown by several of his earlier poems, he had been deeply impressed by the amount of disease and poverty in India, and had observed how the prevalence of fevers largely accounted for this. As a doctor he realized how little the medical service armed with the only known prophylactic—quinine, and that necessarily in quite inadequate quantities—could do to suppress the epidemics of a disease which was transmitted by means that nobody understood.

Encouraged by Sir Patrick Manson in London, during his leave in 1894-5 Ross concentrated on the study of the connexion between mosquitoes and malaria. In 1878 a French army surgeon, Laveran, first observed the parasites of malaria in the blood of a human patient, by studying blood specimens under the microscope. This quickly led to further observations, and by 1885 the appearance of malaria parasites, as dark spots of pigment inside pale round cells which develop and throw off spores, had been noted in the blood of other animals and of birds.

But only guesses had been made as to how the malaria parasite got into the blood and reproduced itself until the corpuscles were all infected by the living spores. And though the guesses included mosquitoes, little was known about the insects and nobody knew for instance that the sort of mosquito infecting human beings might be different from those infecting birds or other animals.

When Ross returned to India in 1895 determined to find out the truth, he himself hardly realized the magnitude of his task, for he had to incriminate the right species out of hundreds, and ascertain how the insect—if indeed it did infect human beings—transmitted the parasites of the fever. In India the authorities were disinclined to favour research work by a member of the medical service, and the microscopic study of bacteria was still a new-fangled notion.

It was therefore after much active official discouragement added to illness and the trying climate of the places where he most wanted to study malaria, that Ross made the great discovery of the pigmented cells of malaria in the tissues of a female Anopheles mosquito.

The weather, that August of 1897, was stifling, owing to the delayed monsoon, and Ross, working in his stuffy little laboratory at Secunderabad, was feeling exhausted after dissecting all but one of a batch of mosquitoes of a kind he had not been able to dissect before. He had noticed them before, as having dapple wings and by the way they stood with head sloping downwards. It seemed as if once more he was going to draw a blank. He had dissected about one thousand mosquitoes during the previous two years, and each insect dissected under the microscope represented at least two hours of concentrated observation, apart from other worries in securing insects and larvae, and arranging for the bottled insects to suck the blood of malarious patients. Most of the mosquitoes dissected had been of a different sort from this dapple-winged type which had filled him with renewed hope. Now it looked as if this also was innocent. He was inclined to give up work for the day before finishing the mosquito already on the microscope slide. Sweat streamed into his eyes, and the strain on his sight was made worse by a crack in the eye-piece.

A malaria carrier

In his own words—"I went carefully through the tissues with the same passion and care with which one would search some vast ruined cathedral for a little hidden treasure. Nothing! No, these mosquitoes also were going to be a failure. There was something wrong with the theory. But the stomach tissues remained to be examined—lying there empty and flaccid before me on the glass slide: a great white expanse of cells like a courtyard of flagstones—each one of which must be scrutinized . . . But I was tired, what was the use? . . . But the Angel of Fate fortunately laid his hand upon my head. . . ."

He resumed work, and almost immediately saw a dark stain that ought not to have been there. He altered the focus of the microscope to make sure, and with rising excitement realized that he was looking at the pigmented malaria parasite in a mosquito. The next day he confirmed the observation. The parasite had grown larger. And in the last mosquito of the batch he found it again. He was soon able to show that the malaria parasite, sucked from a malarious person, passed through various stages, from the mosquito's stomach into the salivary gland and thence into the next human being that the insect bit. Only the females seek blood, the males being vegetarians, and it has been suggested that the purpose of sucking blood is connected with the development of their eggs.

Ross made some more neat entries in his note-book, sealed specimens to go with his report, and, characteristically, broke into verse: these three little stanzas being part of his famous series called In Exile which describes, like a poetic diary, his mental vicissitudes during the laborious researches in India:

This day relenting God
Hath placed within my hand
A wondrous thing; and God
Be praised. At His command
Seeking His secret deeds
With tears and toiling breath,
I find thy cunning seeds
O million-murdering Death.

I know this little thing
A myriad men will save.
O Death, where is thy sting?
Thy victory, O Grave?

It is by no means the best of the poems in the series but it is and deserves to be the most famous one. The result of the discovery, as became apparent to the slowest intelligence, was that vast areas of the globe—desolated by malaria—might be made verily to blossom as the rose by applying the practical measures which Ross, quickly followed by others, devised for abolishing epidemics.

Very briefly, the campaign that had to be waged against malaria—and, as soon became apparent, against yellow fever also—depended mainly upon mosquito-control measures in all thickly populated areas. Choking the larvae in the breeding seasons by spraying water with oil, stocking ponds with fish, drainage work to get rid of avoidable standing water in malarious areas, were the chief acts of warfare against mankind's greatest enemy. The Americans soon made Havana comparatively healthy, and the British did the same for most of "The White Man's Grave" on the West Coast of Africa, though there were opposition and scepticism to be overcome. The rim of the Suez Canal was cleared of malaria, and during the next twenty years an enormously rich plantation area of the Malay States where native life had been moribund because of malaria epidemics was transformed by the expensive but fruitful anti-mosquito measures carried out. Here and there in India valuable work was done, and is still being done, but it was of India and Ceylon especially that Ross in his later years was thinking when he complained of the inadequacy of malaria control work.

It is as well to remember that the frightful epidemic which swept Ceylon in 1934-5 was the result of neglecting to carry out adequate mosquito control, for which the medical services in several respects were deficient, as was shown by the careful survey, Malaria in Ceylon, by Col. C. L. Dunn (1936), a former Director of Public Health in the United Provinces of India.

Let us not forget that while a million or more people die of malaria every year in India, and nearly a third of the globe is still malarious, statistics issued in recent years by the League of Nations and the Public Health Commissioner with the Government of India show that in most parts of the world the incidence of malaria tends to increase (unless fuller registration is accountable for the frequently larger figures).

Even in the United States a nation-wide organization has been found necessary to combat malaria, from which at least four million people are estimated, on the basis of incomplete returns, to suffer seriously, while the population that is liable to be swept by local epidemics is of course many times that figure. The federal government now makes grants to the state health departments, mainly in the south-west and south, for well-organized malaria control plans which include the co-operation of an army of civilian volunteers.

More Evidence Against Tammany Chief

Mr. Dewey's Witnesses Tell of Bribes Given

New York, Sept. 2.

Mr. Thomas Dewey, New York District Attorney, prepared to bring his bribery and conspiracy case against James J. Hines to an end today after presenting additional sensational incriminating evidence against the former Tammany Hall chief.

Mr. Dewey's first witness today was Mr. Max Steuer, an attorney friend of Hines, who testified that Hines had asked him to represent the late "Dutch" Schultz in an income tax evasion case several years ago. Schultz was leader of the New York gang which organized the $100,000,000 illegal lottery racket which Hines is alleged to have protected through his political and official influence.

The second witness for the prosecution today was Mrs. Hyman Wendroff, sister of J. Richard "Dixie" Davis, former Schultz attorney who has turned State's evidence. Mrs. Wendroff testified that on several occasions she had delivered $500 to Hines on behalf of the Schultz gang. Earlier witnesses testified that Hines received $500 weekly from the gang for his "services".

Federal police also testified today that they had tapped Hines' telephone during an investigation of the case and had heard a man named "Jim" telephone Davis and ask for $500.—United Press.

Sixty Years Ago

FROM THE "NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS," OF SEPTEMBER 5, 1878

The inspector of markets, in his August report, presented to the Municipal Council at their meeting held on the 9th instant, explained that several dealers had been fined at the Mixed Court for selling pheasants during the closed season, and pointed out that the Assessor had informed him that in future the Magistrate would not inflict any fines for the offence, as he considered that those foreigners who bought game out of season were more to blame than the natives who sold it. It was decided that next year the open season should commence on September 1, instead of on October 1, as heretofore. It cannot be said that the Magistrate's remarks are uncalled for, but all true sportsmen will regret the necessity for such a resolution as the Council have passed. The Council at the same meeting granted leave of absence to Dr. Henderson, and appointed Dr. Macleod to act in his place as Health Officer and Municipal surgeon and Dr. Zachariae as surgeon of the Lock Hospital. An application for additional lamps on Bubbling Well Road was refused.

Lesson Sermon

First Church of Christ Scientist

"Man" is the subject of the Lesson Sermon read on Sept. 4, in all Churches of Christ Scientist throughout the world.

Golden Text: Psalms 84:4,12. "Blessed are they that dwell in thy house: they will be still praising thee . . . O Lord of hosts, blessed is the man that trusteth in thee."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson Sermon are the following from the Bible: Isaiah 43:1,5,6,7. "But now thus saith the Lord that created thee, O Jacob, and he that formed thee, O Israel, Fear not: for I am with thee. I will say to the north, Give up; and to the south, Keep not back: . . . Even everyone that is called by thy name: for I have created him for my glory, I have formed him; Yea I have made him."

The Lesson Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy.p.475:—

"The Scriptures inform us that man is made in the image and likeness of God. Matter is not that likeness. The likeness of Spirit cannot be so unlike Spirit. He is the compound idea of God, including all right ideas; that which has not a single quality underived from Deity; that which possesses no life, intelligence, nor creative power of his own, but reflects spiritually all that belongs to his Maker."

British Radio Amateurs Can Help R.A.F.

Appeal for 7,000 Volunteers For Signals Branch Made

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

London, Sept. 3.

An appeal for seven thousand wireless amateurs, to act as a reserve for the Signals branch of the Air Force, was broadcast by Captain H. H. Balfour, Under-Secretary of State for Air, throughout the country last night.

Captain Balfour said that the younger ones could go into the air for radio work, while the older ones could be engaged in similar work on the ground.

Out of 26,000 airmen recruits, for which the Air Ministry is appealing this year, 4,300 would be used as wireless operators, he declared, but behind them was needed an adequate reserve.—Reuter.

THE film version of Kipling's "Gunga Din," made in Hollywood by the Radio Picture Corporation, is one of their most ambitious, and is expected to cost more than £400,000. The story based on the ballad is written by Ben Hecht and Charles McArthur. The cast, a mainly British one, includes Victor McLaglen, Cary Grant and Douglas Fairbanks, jun. Gunga Din will be played by Sam Jaffe (the 250-year-old lama of "Lost Horizon") and Joan Fontaine will be the heroine. Sir Robert Holland, a former member of the India Council, will act as technical adviser, and more than six months have been spent in ensuring that the background shall be thoroughly convincing.

WOMAN'S PAGE

A Shanghai Letter

BY HESTER

In our juvenile days we used to read that in China, Nature worked in a way contrary to her performances in the western world, and that according to our homeside standards, life was all topsy turvy here. Birds, we were told, did not sing, and flowers had no scent—all wrong of course, but there is one particular in which we seem to flourish in reverse order from European countries. It is generally conceded that the Spring of the year brings to humans as well as to plant life, renewed vigour and interest in events. With our selves, it is the return of Autumn which awakens us to the life around, and gives us courage and hope. True the customary fruitfulness and subsequent decay take place in the vegetable kingdom, but socially at this season life begins to stir, the summer coma disappears, and the general outlook seems good.

* * *

We may say that the season has been ushered in in Royal fashion indeed for it was the celebrations in connection with the Netherlands Queen's Jubilee and birthday which set the ball rolling. On Her Majesty's birthday, Mr. and Mrs. Boissevain, Netherlands Consul-General and wife, held a reception in honour of their Sovereign at their spacious apartment in Rivers Court. Coloured lights decorated the roof garden, there were flowers and plants and all was most festive and delightful.

A still greater celebration will take place to-morrow night at the Columbia Country Club when members of the Netherlands community will foregather to celebrate the fortieth year of Wilhelmina's actual reign as queen. Queen Wilhelmina was "inaugurated" at Amsterdam on September 6, 1898, though she had succeeded to the throne on the death of her father, William III, in November, 1890. Until her eighteenth year the business of state was carried on under the regency of the Queen Mother, and many will remember with what great affection this lady was held by her people. So it was, like Queen Victoria of England, that Queen Wilhelmina came to the throne in girlhood, and her subjects in all parts of the world will wish her as long a reign as the English queen. Netherlands people in every part of the world will be celebrating to-morrow night.

* * *

Full of Affairs

The Columbia Country Club has been one of the busiest hives of activity in the city during the whole of the summer—purely among members of course, and one of their busiest days was our wettest Sunday when, in the morning, a children's swimming gala was held, and at lunch time 170 people sat down to a barbecue meal. The wet day did not perturb the young swimmers, but the roasting of two pigs out of doors presented a problem. Difficulties, however, are made to be mastered, and a mat erection over the roasting pork—which began at five in the morning, was effective. It is a fact that not all the new contrivances for cookery which modern science can invent succeed in producing such flavourful and delicious food as does the Southern American barbecue method. Anything cooked that way retains all its juices, and flavours are enhanced, so that if ever we are stranded on a desert island we hope that a barbecue expert will be of the party.

A most successful swimming event was the large party given on Monday by Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Hardman at the Country Club, this being arranged for their sons who are here on holiday.

Autumn Manoeuvres

Glad September descended upon us in no very friendly fashion and for a day or two showed us what she could really do in the way of damp heat supply, but we are not perturbed for we know that the best is yet to be so far as weather conditions are concerned. Thoughts of many are turning towards Autumn routine; schools will open, and the dancing classes will commence. In Shanghai at present there is little we can give our children in the way of healthy relaxation, and so the opening of dancing schools will be greeted with joy by many parents as well as by their young. The Bateman-King School of Dancing will reopen on September 17 and their attractively decorated studio is situated at 999 Bubbling Well Road (behind the Y. W. C. A.), and pupils will be interested to learn that a dressing room has been added to the studio. Miss King will be at the studio every day from 10 p.m. to noon, and from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. from September 12, for enrolments and interviews.

China at Home

For something like 45 years Mr. Isaac Mason worked in China engaged in missionary and literary work. He and his wife have been home for several years now, and friends of theirs interested wrote to them some time ago drawing their attention to an advertisement in the N.-C.D.N. for a Chinese professor at the University of Oxford. Mr. Mason replies that 68 is rather old for a man to take up a new post, especially since the retiring age of that post is 65! The Masons have bought a house at Worthing and are very happy there. Mr. Mason still keeps up a certain amount of Chinese study and for his own pleasure reads daily of this remarkable language. He is at present engaged in writing a book on "Islam in China" and he tells us that there are many local interests to which he gives considerable attention. He speaks at many meetings and goes to London occasionally for committees. Gardening also is a great interest to both himself and his wife, and altogether they find plenty of occupation in the homeland in spite of their 40 years in China, and of the fact that they left here when they were no longer very young. They have been able to take up fresh interests and have become really absorbed in the life in England.

In August a "Stricken China" exhibition was held in London to help raise funds in aid of a medical unit. This was promoted by a branch of the League of Nations Union, and was under the patronage of Dr. Quo Tai-chi, the Chinese Ambassador to London. Chinese views are well presented at home and apparently a successful speaker in her cause was the Rev. G. K. Chang, chaplain to Trinity College, Foochow, who has been lecturing at several schools at home. We read in one public school magazine:

"Mr. Chang described a few of the troubles of the Chinese at the present time, and told us how the Christians in China, led by Madame Chiang-Kai-shek, are helping to relieve suffering besides carrying out their ordinary missionary work. He also told us of the various religions in China, the most widely spread being Confucianism. After the lecture he took evensong in the school chapel, was then entertained to tea by members of Form VI and Upper V to whom he showed photographs of his family, and explained the structure of Chinese writing.

"We all fell that this was one of the most interesting lectures we have ever had."

So the Chinese situation is being well presented at home, and receiving full publicity.

Former Residents

Union Church members, and the many friends of Rev. and Mrs. H. G. Newsham will have been interested to learn that the former pastor of Union Church, Shanghai, has accepted the pastorate at Wilmslow. This is good news, for Wilmslow is considered one of the best residential districts of Manchester, and is situated in beautiful country. The church is large and has the support of people very comfortably provided with this world's goods, who are keen churchgoers and church workers. We understand also that the members of the congregation are of the intellectual classes so that Mr. Newsham's highly erudite and thoughtful sermons will be well appreciated. The opinion has been expressed here, by people who know the district, that Mrs. Newsham ought to be in her element in Wilmslow, and it is prophesied that she will be extremely popular. Shanghai residents who know Wilmslow consider that our Shanghai pastor will be very happy in his new sphere.

"Anything Most Hard"

When Antonio wished to show his friend the futility of questioning with Shylock he advanced some very useful instances. It will be recalled that he told Bassanio that it would be as easy to soften the usurer's heart as to persuade the wolf that it was cruel to eat the lamb, or to stem the advance of the incoming tide, but, had he lived in China he could have instanced another thing difficult of accomplishment—that of persuading the Chinese of the coolie class not to spit.

Various suggestions have been made by writers to the newspapers as to how to deal with this disgusting habit, but we think that stemming the oncoming tide would be easier ....engineering might learn to do something about that, but neither science nor persuasion will convert our world's worst spitters. In the interests of cleaner pavements though it might be feasible to apply a rule prevailing at home and that is to make every shopkeeper or householder whose building faces on the street, keep his particular bit of sidewalk clean by swilling it down at least once a day....several times a day if necessary. There might be a fine imposed for dirty pavements. Also, the uncivilized habit of putting the contents of dustbins out on the streets some time before the collection carts come round, should also be subjected to severe penalty. Such simple precautions are not impossible even here.

* * *

Swept and Garnished

One can walk through many large towns and through poor working-class districts in England and note the cleanliness prevailing. We remember walking through a poor quarter of Leeds where each house front occupied not more than twelve feet of space, and all opened directly on to the street. It was a very old quarter; the road and paving were worn, and the brickwork of the houses was blackened and disintegrating, yet all was as clean as human hands could make it.

Every householder not only swept before her door daily, but swilled and scrubbed the pavement, cleaned the gutters, and is some cases whitened the edge of the curb with a sort of rub-stone. All window ledges were treated similarly, and we understand that such is the nature of these housewives that, had any passing man dared to spit on any bit of pavement, he would have run the risk of getting a mop in his face.

We have no wish to incur further incidents here by recommending the housewife's mop cure for spitting, but surely it would not be too much to ask each shopkeeper to keep his pavement clean. Another small matter might be attended to by those who employ chauffeurs. Masters might insist that drivers try to live up to the style of the splendid cars they drive, and to their spotless uniforms by refraining from spitting on Master's front step, particularly when that front step is shared by many others, as is the case in large and highly-rented apartment buildings.

Small things in this way we can do, but as for curing the natives here—that is those of the working classes, "you may as well forbid the mountain pines to wag their high tops when they are fretted with the gusts of Heaven," that much is sure.

* * *

Another Peak?

It looks rather as though we were heading for another peak in prices since, from September 1, several commodities have advanced further, bread among them, which will be rather a blow to the poor. We must concede, however, that our bakers have so far been lenient in the matter of bread in not raising prices before, since flour has been up for some time. We have to consider that, not only has the price of flour risen, but baking costs have increased considerably since electricity, gas and coal have soared, so that the increased charge for bread is reasonable. There is hardly any profit in it at any time—or so a baker tells us.

A strange sidelight upon costs and returns though was revealed to us by a little Chinese tradesman who apologized for having to "chargee littee more high" for account rendered since, as he explained: "evelyting more dear; rent more high, lightee more high, materials, chow, evelyting more high; only labour no more dear." The last sentence speaks volumes. "Alas that bread should be so dear, and flesh and blood so cheap." Most of us have increased our servants' wages, but with other matters being so difficult, Chinese employers have not all been able to increase workmen's wages. Flesh and blood is indeed cheap in this unhappy country.

A very charming version of the high hat and the veil—both of which are recognized high lights of the autumn fashion parade. In this instance they crown the pretty head of Miss Florence George.

Queen Wilhelmina

Forty years ago tomorrow Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands was "inaugurated." On August 31, 1898, she reached her eighteenth birthday and on September 6 of the same year she became a reigning monarch. She succeeded to the throne in 1890, but her mother, the Queen Dowager Emma, acted as regent during her minority. Tomorrow the world's congratulations will be sincerely offered to Queen Wilhelmina and the respected nation over which she rules.

Social Rise of the Typewriter

Princely Fingers Now Tap the Keys

Gone are the days when it was necessary to apologize for typing a private letter to a friend. There are those people who still think that a typed letter lacks the "personal" touch—but the majority find enough personality in the signature of the writer and are grateful for the clear presentation of news. Few people who use typewriters ever have patience to return to the slow work of a pen.

The idea that a typewriter is "vulgar" has long died out. Queen Elizabeth uses one. The little Princesses can already type sufficiently well to write letters thus to their friends. The Duchess of Gloucester included a typewriter in her Kenya luggage. Two years ago the Earl of Harewood gave one to his son and heir, Lord Lascelles, who was thereby emboldened with the help of his brother, Gerald, to start a magazine, the "Harewood News," which has a circulation of 200! It was their mother, the Princess Royal, who taught them to use the machine.

Portable typewriters for personal use can be so pretty nowadays and are so compact and so silent that there should be no one left with a prejudice against them.

Zabaglione

Here is the tested recipe from the published collection of the Vicomete de Mauduit, the fascinating cookery book to which the late Frances Countess of Warwick contributed a foreword of admiration:

To each person allow one yolk of egg, one liqueur glass of marsala or sherry (preferably the first), and one large tablespoonful of sugar. Whisk all together with an egg whisk in a basin standing in a pan of nearly boiling water. This has to be whisked for about a quarter of an hour, bringing the pan gradually nearer the fire, till, at the end of the quarter of an hour, it finds itself on it. Leave it on three minutes, whisking all the time. Serve hot in crystal glasses with langues de chat or sweet biscuits.

Fobs Instead of Buttonholes

Fobs rival floral buttonholes in popularity with wearers of suits, and the latest are attractive in the extreme.

Tiny pairs of shoes, made in the height of fashion, dangle from coloured cords to be strung on a brooch or threaded through a lapel.

To prevent the legs of a bedstead from marking the floor, place a circular piece of felt or rubber under each foot. This simple precaution is necessary in case the bed has to be moved to another part of the room.

"Another New Dress?"

"No, my dear, I've just had it cleaned the Pride way. Doesn't it look perfectly marvellous? I feel as if I had a new dress on. Why don't you send your clothes to the Pride to-day?"

IMPARTIAL NOT NEUTRAL

THE PAST WEEK

The past week has seen more activity in China than for quite a while past, and it would now really seem that the long-awaited Japanese advance on Hankow has at last commenced. So far there have been four important movements in connection with it. The first led to the capture of Juichang, westwards of Kiukiang on the south bank of the Yangtze. The second was in the neighbourhood of the north bank in the Wusueh area, which commencing the week before last seemed to have become static during the past seven days with the Chinese claiming minor successes as the result of counter attacks against positions already taken by the Japanese. Further north Japanese forces moving westward from Liuan reached Yehkiatsi near the Anhwei-Honan border, apparently with the design of cutting the Peiping-Hankow Railway, while forces in Shansi, at the extreme southwest corner, were endeavouring to cross the Yellow River at Tungkwan, where the Chinese dominated the crossing, later moving eastward to Pinglu, where it is expected that a passage will be effected, to enable the Japanese to advance into Shensi. Chinese claims to have secured an important success at Tatsienshan are probably to some extent true, but there has been apparent a tendency to magnify the success. In any event the Japanese advances south of the Yangtze to which activity swung in the last days of the week tend to offset whatever success the Chinese attained in that area. The general scheme of the Japanese command as demonstrated during the past fortnight seems to consist of striking at various places along the Chinese line in an alternation of movements, though should the Chinese first line of defence have crumpled as the Japanese claim, there is a possibility that instead of rapidly diversified, isolated movements, the whole may shortly be changed into one mass advance on the Wuhan cities. There is some evidence that the Japanese are paying heavily in casualties for the ground they are gaining, owing to the nature of the terrain.

In Europe the past has been a most anxious week, and, while it closed with a general feeling that the situation had improved somewhat, it is not easy to ascertain from the telegraphic despatches precisely why that should be so. There is now no room for doubt that the stand taken by the British Government, as reiterated by Sir John Simon in his speech at Larnark last Saturday week, had a profound effect upon the situation. It aroused some resentment in Germany, particularly in the German press, but after a few days it appears to have been generally recognized in that country that the pronouncement made by the Chancellor of the Exchequer was nothing but to be expected when the trend of British policy in Europe during the past few months was taken into full consideration. During the week, Dr. Benes put forward, on behalf of the Czechoslovakian government a new set of counter-proposals to the original demands upon which the Sudeten Germans still stand. They were dubbed inacceptable by the Sudeten leaders, though it appears that the Czechoslovakian Government under the advice of Lord Runciman has made very substantial concessions in an endeavour to arrive at an amicable settlement. Up to the present the Sudeten Germans have announced no modification of the demands contained in Herr Henlein's original Carlsbad declarations, and it remains to be seen, whether, in view of the length to which Dr. Benes has gone, they in their turn will be prepared to make some sort of contribution to the settlement which is so anxiously sought. Should they remain adamant the chances of Europe escaping a general war will be no greater than they have apparently been during the past three weeks. Much will depend upon the result of the conference between Herr Hitler and Herr Henlein at Berchtesgaden during the later end of last week, the particulars of which have not yet been made public. Nevertheless diplomatic circles in London are so optimistic over the situation that some authorities are quoted as saying that it is only a question of time before the situation will finally solve itself. There is, however, very little in the reports to hand during the past week to show why this optimism should be felt, and the events of this coming week will be awaited still with some anxiety.

Much depends upon what happens at Nuremburg. Der Fuehrer has still the last say, and it is quite clear that if he throws his influence in favour of persuading the Sudeten Germans to make some concessions, which will relieve the Czechoslovakian Government of the abject surrender originally demanded, the prospects of an amicable settlement will be rosy. But there is still the danger that such a settlement would have about it no degree of permanence, and the real point at the moment, is whether Herr Hitler will defer for the moment his anschluss movement, or whether he considers the time ripe for the further advance towards the achievement of the wider policy designed to embody all Germans within the Reich. That is the crux of the whole matter, and if Der Fuehrer is not irrevocably committed to the immediate carrying out of his policy, then there is more than a small chance that peace, at any rate for the time being, will be secured. Nuremburg alone will show how far Herr Hitler is committed, and the opinion is felt in some quarters that he has already gone so far that he cannot recede without some loss of prestige in the eyes of his followers. It may be, however, that a via media has been discovered in the course of all the anxious conversations which took place last week, in which event one or other of his proposed speeches to be made this week may serve to allay prevailing disquietude. That at least must be the hope of those who fully realize the seriousness of the situation, though even then, the continued maintenance under arms of such large German forces as have already been mobilized will tend to continue tension, though, perhaps in a modified form. If, however, the real reason for the mobilization was the training of those classes which were not conscripted between the end of the war and 1934, by reason of the provisions of the Peace Treaty, then it is unlikely that Herr Hitler will make any change in this respect. The general result of these considerations is that the situation is much better today than it was a week ago, and there are hopes for a greater improvement, but much still remains to be done, before Europe is entirely relieved of this present threat of war.

Dangerous Elevation

There is a suggestion to be found in the telegrams that if the Czechoslovakian Government fails to find sufficient support from France and Great Britain in the present crisis, it might turn to Soviet Russia for help. Russia at the present moment is a very unknown quantity, for the purges which have been carried out in the Army, and the latest massacre of admirals in the Navy suggest that the fighting services are perhaps not quite so reliable as is necessary if the Soviet is ever to utilize the power which it has been building up. It is one of the principles of democracy that everyone should have an equal chance to gain the top of the tree. Totalitarian Bolshevism goes one better. It concedes the quality of all men before the state, insists upon the responsibility of the state and the citizen towards each other, and consequently permits of ability rising to the greatest heights, for there is plenty of room at the top. Where Communism improves upon the weak and watery doctrines of democracy, is not only by providing that there shall be plenty of room in that elevated position, but that the accommodation shall be enlarged by the execution of those who have attained that eminence. This is very encouraging to the lower ranks, who see in this beneficient provision, chances of promotion early in life. So long as the aspirant is content with something somewhat below the ultimate height life goes well for him, but it is a miserable day when he is told to go up higher. The moment that there is no further rank to which he might be promoted the man's existence is a fearful one, for he never knows when he will be pruned to make room for someone below. It is a strange system, but if the Soviet soldier prefers to remain a private, it is probably only the ignorant people in the democracies who will refrain from blaming him. There are quite likely in the Russian navy at the present moment officers who would give anything for the safest of promotion,—an Irishman's rise.

NATURE NOTES

During the past few days I have been rung up on the telephone a number of times by people asking me questions about moths they have seen in their gardens. One lady was sure she had seen a humming bird, and wanted to know if these birds were known to occur in this region, or had she made a new discovery? What she had seen, of course, was a humming bird hawk-moth, which are fairly common in Shanghai gardens, and may be seen any fine day hovering over such flowers as zinnias or dahlias, sucking nectar through their long probosces, which they usually carry coiled up like a watch spring, but can straighten out at will and insert into the honey-laden tubes of the florets. They certainly do resemble the birds from which they get their name, but it may be noted that humming birds are confined to the American continents, being found nowhere else in the world. This is by no means the first time I have been informed by people in Shanghai that they have seen humming birds in their gardens. The other telephone calls I have recently received have all been concerned with Luna moths (Actias selene), by far the largest and most beautiful lepidopterons found in this part of China. Of a uniform white colour faintly tinged with green, these handsome moths have a wing span of about four and a half inches. The hind-wings are adorned with long swallow tails while each of the four wings has a crescent shaped spot of a dark maroon colour. It is from these that these moths derive their name. There is also a narrow black and maroon band extending along the anterior margin of each fore-wing and across the thorax, which with the abdomen is covered with soft fluffy white scales or feathers looking almost like rabbit's fur. Apparently these moths make their appearance during the latter part of August, when they may be seen floating through the evening air like ghosts. Indeed, the Chinese call them "ghost moths," which is, perhaps, a better name than ours. The other night, August 24, I found two of these beautiful moths in my garden. They had evidently just emerged from their chrysalises, as they were clinging to foliage close to the ground, and could hardly fly when I first discovered them. I placed them on a shrub in a pot on my verandah where I could watch them in the light from the drawing room. They remained perfectly quiet for some time, then, having gained the full use of their wings, they floated away in the dark. While on this subject I would like to report that I have now proved the association that exists between the little butterflies called "blues," which have been congregating in such numbers on my verandah recently, and the ants, which also live there. I have discovered the green caterpillars of the former being attended by ants, which were "milking" them of the fluid exuded from protuberances on their bodies. These caterpillars are feeding on the leaves of the wood-sorrel, which grows in pots on my verandah in the neighbourhood of several colonies of ants. I discussed this phenomenon in my note of August 26.—A. DE C. S.

"My favourite hero is Robin Hood," said Jerome, "because he robbed the rich and gave to the poor, just like President Roosevelt."

Czech-Sudeten Breach Still Open

Equality Demand Irritates Czechs: Results Of Henlein's Visit to Berlin Awaited: Lord Runciman May Confer With Hitler

London, Sept. 4.

DESPITE encouraging signs during the past few days, the outlook in Europe is still unsettled, with the task of finding a basis of agreement between the Czechs and the Sudetens proving a difficult one. The Sudetens, state reports from Prague, insist on the principle of complete equality with the Czechs before they will discuss details. The Czechs, on the other hand, find it hard to swallow the principle of equality, realizing that once this is granted, their powers of effective control over the country will be diminished. The Sudetens, it is learned, while they have not rejected the Government's cantonization proposals, are willing to accept the idea of cantons only on condition that they are based on the Swiss model.

Herr Konrad Henlein's paper, "Rundschau," declares that the Czechs are feeling more and more that the advice and pressure of the Western Powers is driving them towards more and greater concessions.

Several Czech papers yesterday revealed resentment at the attitude of the Powers, and showed an inclination to look to Soviet Russia for support. The "Narodni Politica," for example, declares that the Czechs must act in conformity with the advice, not merely of the Western, but also of the Eastern Powers, "wherewith lies the final word, owing to their greater strength."

A more hopeful sign was the peaceful tone of the Berlin press, although the campaign against Czechoslovakia continues unabated.

A violent attack on Czechoslovakia was made by a Vienna radio station last night, it is reported from that city. This, it is stated, was the first of a series of daily broadcasts in the Czech language, said to be intended primarily for the 90,000 Czechs in Austria, with the object of countering "false Czech propaganda." The broadcaster declared that Czechoslovakia was inciting the nations against each other, trying, for example, to incite Italy against Germany.

Opinion in London is disposed to await definite information regarding the upshot of Herr Konrad Henlein's interview with Herr Hitler, before attempting to assess its effect upon the international situation.

No definite information is yet available, and consequently it is uncertain whether there is any substance in reports that Herr Henlein has returned to Czechoslovakia with counter proposals.

Nor is there any precise information yet available in London as to details of the latest proposals of the Czech Government, or as to what passed at Friday's interview between Dr. Edouard Benes, Czech President, and the Sudeten German negotiators.

The general feeling in British political circles, therefore, is that it is premature to form any definite view as to the effect of Friday's events upon the situation.—Reuter.

Herr Henlein Returns Home

Prague, Sept. 4.

Herr Konrad Henlein, Leader of the Sudeten German Party, arrived at his home at Asch from Berchtesgaden at 5 p.m. yesterday.

A report that he saw Mr. F. T. A. Ashton-Gwatkin, member of Lord Runciman's mission, at Marienbad, is incorrect. Mr. Ashton-Gwatkin has left for Rothenhaus, where he will be the guest of Prince Max Hohenlohe.

Herr Henlein is expected to proceed there tomorrow to join them. Lord Runciman, it is learned, may also proceed to Rothenhaus.

Lord Runciman had a long talk with Dr. Edouard Benes, Czech President, yesterday afternoon. Herr Ernest Kundt, Sudeten representative, called on Dr. Milan Hodza, Czech Premier.—Reuter.

Runciman-Hitler Interview

Prague, Sept. 3.

Lord Runciman, may seek a personal meeting with Herr Adolf Hitler following the present conference between Herr Hitler and Herr Konrad Henlien, leader of the Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia, it was reported here today.

The possible meeting between the British mediator and the German leader who is directing the activities of the Germans in Czechoslovakia would be the most important development of the current critical week, observers here believed.

Some circles here predicted that the possible meeting between Herr Hitler and Lord Runciman might lead to an international conference which Lord Runciman has sought to establish as a basis for further negotiation on the Czech minorities question before Herr Hitler speaks at the Nazi Congress at Nuremberg next week.

Increasing rumours said here today that Herr Hitler might demand a plebiscite among the Sudetens to determine whether they desired to remain under Czech rule or become part of Greater Germany.—United Press.

Pres. Roosevelt Follows Events

Washington, Sept. 3.

Still considering the Czech-Sudeten crisis potentially explosive, President Roosevelt remained close to Washington for the week-end today.

The President and Secretary of State, Mr. Cordell Hull, have been keeping abreast of Europaen developments through frequent conferences with European diplomats here. Mr. Roosevelt today termed the European situation "difficult" when asked whether he believed the situation was "delicate".

The State Department meanwhile began a study of Italy's new racial credo to determine how Italian persecution of Jews might affect the United States.—United Press.

German Troops on French Border

Strong Forces Moved, But Only Part of Manœuvres; Paris Unperturbed

Strasbourg, Sept. 3.

Strong German reinforcements moved into positions along the Rhine during the past 24 hours in the Kehl and Offenburg regions, it was learned here tonight. Mechanized units, light artillery batteries and machine-guns were moved into the new German fortifications along the French frontier. Troops were billeted among the peasants after all regular barracks had been filled.

The Kehl bridge at Strasbourg remained open and French officials gave no evidence that any counter measures would be taken to offset the threat of heavy German concentrations along the French frontier.

Approximately two German divisions have arrived on the French frontier since Friday. They were believed to be merely occupying Germany's new fortifications as part of regular manœuvres. The defences in this area are between nine and twelve miles in depth, one of the strongest points on the German front.—United Press.

Only Part of Manœuvres

Berlin, Sept. 3.

The German War Office admitted here tonight that German troop movements were progressing along the French frontier opposite Strasbourg.

A War Office spokesman said the troop movements were in conjunction with regular Army manœuvres and had no other special significance.—United Press.

France not Alarmed

Paris, Sept. 3.

The office of the Premier announced tonight that there was no cause for alarm over German troop movements along the French frontier.

The announcement said the German manœuvres were purely defensive and connected solely with current German Army manœuvres.

Observers believed the statement was released in view of considerable anxiety expressed by the press over the concentration of more than two German divisions in the new Rhineland defences.—United Press.

Japan's Amphibious War in China

Landing Craft Interests Naval Experts

London, Sept. 4.

The amphibious warfare carried out by Japan in her China campaign has led to the production of two new types of ship, states the "Sunday Times" Naval Correspondent. These, the correspondent points out, have been developed in order to carry out rapid landings at a considerable distance from the fleet and military bases.

The two types, he goes on to say, are complementary, one fitting into the other. One type, it is stated, is a large motor craft, something in the nature of a lighter. It is designed to carry troops, who are protected by light armour plate, capable of withstanding rifle and machine-gun bullets.

The correspondent understands that some of the lighters have been fitted with caterpillar tracks, in addition to screws. As soon as the lighters touch the beach, the correspondent states, the tracks carry the vessels up on to the land in the same manner as tanks, and enable troops to land dryshod.

The complementary vessels, he reveals, are specially designed ships, capable of carrying both lighters and troops for long distances.

They, in effect, comprise something between a sort of multiple floating-dock, and a warship. They mount guns.

The craft, the correspondent declares, are the strangest-looking ships built by any country. He adds that they have great, wide, flat after-parts, carrying powerful cranes and derricks. Japan, the correspondent concludes, kept the design and construction of these strange craft a secret, and nothing is known of their behaviour at sea.—Reuter.

Prince Chichibu Gets Italian Decoration

Tokyo, Sept. 3.

The Italian Ambassador to Tokyo today presented Prince Chichibu with a decoration from the King of Italy. The gesture was believed one of friendship between two members of the Anti-Comintern Pact.—United Press.

Electricity in Mines

London, Sept. 4.

The use of electricity for power in and about coal-mines increased by 83,000 horse-power last year and, says the annual report of the electrical inspector of mines, the total electrical power in use exceeds 1,000,000 horse power.

The quantity of coal cut by electrical machines last year was 97,127,000 tons, and the quantity cut by air-driven machines was 40,320,000 tons. The proportion of all coal cut by machines was 55.5 per cent.—Wireless through Reuter.

Nuremberg Congress Assembling

Much Speculation Over Hitler's Declaration

London, Sept. 4.

All Berlin diplomatists and officials are busy packing up for the Nazi Party Rally at Nuremburg; this, and the usual week-end slackening-off, has produced a comparatively peaceful atmosphere.

Everyone is awaiting Herr Hitler's declaration, which will be read by Gauleiter Wagner on Tuesday. It is believed that it will not contain any important reference to the Czech-Sudeten negotiations, unless they are so far advanced that a basis for discussion is within sight.—Reuter.

French Speculation

Paris, Sept. 3.

Politicians are still in the dark over Herr Hitler's impending action in the Czech-Sudeten dispute. It is generally anticipated that he will make an address during the Nuremberg Nazi Congress proclaiming the Sudeten Germans' right of "self-determination." which would be tantamount to a request for a plebiscite.

But, the same politicians wonder whether the Fuehrer's address will be in the form of an ultimatum or whether it would be a mere proposal, as a basis for further discussions. The same quarters also wonder whether Herr Hitler will refer to the Sudeten question in opening the Congress on Monday, or whether he will wait a while, perhaps even until the conclusion of proceedings on September 12.

The idea that the Reich may attack Czechoslovakia while the Congress is in progress is definitely discarded, however, whatever the uncertainty over other possible developments.

Some observers expect that the Fuehrer's declaration will mark out the Reich's claims in the form of an applied Monroe Doctrine in Central Europe, practically equivalent to a slogan "Central Europe for the Germans."

Others fear that Herr Hitler may take a stronger course of action and assert that the sole solution of the Sudeten question lies in the partition of Czechoslovakia and the subordination of Prague to German influence.—Havas.

800,000 People at Nuremberg

Berlin, Sept. 4.

A grand total of 800,000 men, women and children, many from Austria, are attending the forthcoming Nazi Rally at Nuremburg.

A collapsible "Strength Through Joy" village, which housed the Olympic Games visitors, will accommodate 24,000 participants in the Rally. The remainder will be under canvas.

Many thousands of tons of straw have been provided for beds.—Reuter.

Flying Over Area Banned

Berlin, Sept. 4.

It is officially announced here that flying over Nuremberg and neighbourhood is strictly prohibited during a period from September 3 to 13. The official announcement adds that the Nuremberg region will be guarded by anti-aircraft batteries which will fire at any plane which enters the prohibited area without permission. The prohibited area will, moreover, be patrolled by planes of the air police.

Planes entering the prohibited area without special permit will be fired at if they do not land at once after having been warned by signals given by air police planes.—Trans-Ocean.

U.S. Ambassador to Attend

Nuremberg, Sept. 4.

Among the foreign diplomats attending the Congress at Nuremberg will for the first time also be the United States Ambassador. With the exception of the Soviet Russian, Uruguayan, Columbian and Bolivian envoys, all foreign diplomats accredited in Berlin will attend this year's Congress. Two special trains will convey ten Ambassadors, 22 Ministers and 13 Charge d'Affaires to Nuremberg tomorrow.—Trans-Ocean.

Anti-Jewish Riots In Ukraine

Organized Movement Seen Behind Attacks

Helsingfors, Sept. 4.

Many were killed and wounded as a result of serious anti-Jewish riots recently in the Ukraine, reports the Moscow correspondent of the "Svenska."

The inhabitants of the town of Podobyanla, the journal states, suddenly began to evict and beat Jews, and to wreck their shops and homes. A crowd of several thousands, according to the report, then rushed to the town of Dobrjanko, and continued the riots there.

A commission of enquiry has established that the outbreak was organized by an anti-Semitic movement, which is reported to be fairly widespread in the Ukraine.

Clashes are reported from the Kiev District, to which military units have been dispatched to restore order.—Reuter.

Land Mines Found on Parade Ground

Arabs Arrested for Daring Plot in Jerusalem

Jerusalem, Sept. 4.

Two landmines were found yesterday on the Jewish supernumerary constables' parade ground.

Jerusalem police dogs followed the trail to an Arab village, where several persons were arrested.

A night-long curfew has been imposed for the entire length of the railway from Haifa to Egypt.—Reuter.

Big Refugee Trek

Hankow, Sept. 4.

The Honan authorities are arranging for the transportation of 1,370,000 Yellow River flood refugees to the interior, for land reclamation work.

The first batch, consisting of 100,000 refugees, is leaving shortly for Tenghsien, in south-west Honan, where 80,000 mow of land has been allotted to the refugees.—Reuter.

Fierce Fighting for Control of Yangtze "Key" Towns

Grave Threat to Hankow Hangs on Result of Battle; Japanese Claim Capture of Mahweiling

Hankow, Sept. 4.

BITTER fighting is raging on both banks of the Yangtze, with the Chinese and Japanese battling desperately for possession of Mahweiling, which commands the gateway to Nanchang, and Kwangchi, which commands the highway running along the north bank to Hankow, according to Chinese military reports. The populace here is anxiously awaiting the outcome of the engagement at Kwangchi. A Japanese victory in this sector, it is said, will mean a very serious threat to Hankow, because 1. A drive along the highway along the north bank is the shortest and most direct route to Hankow. 2. Penetration of the Chinese line at Kwangchi will give the Japanese an opportunity to circle around the strong Chinese boom and fortifications in the vicinity of Tienchiecheng and Wusueh.

The Japanese drive from north-west Anhwei province into Honan will not have an important bearing on the Hankow push, Chinese circles states, unless the Japanese can penetrate the Chinese line at Kwangchi and reach Kichun, on the north bank behind the Chinese fortifications at Tienchiacheng.

At the same time, heavy fighting which may determine the fate of Mahweiling is in progress north-west of the city, where a Japanese column from Juichang is trying to break through the Chinese left wing.

Simultaneously, a small Japanese detachment is reported to be attempting to circle round the Chinese flank in order to reach Mahweiling station, on the Kiukiang-Nanchang Railway, and threaten the rear of the Chinese defences at the strategic Mahweiling mountains. Chinese reinforcements are pouring into this sector in an effort to check the Japanese flanking movement.

Importance of Capture

The importance of Mahweiling cannot be minimised since the possession of this strategic point will enable an army holding it either to march southward along the Kiukiang-Nanchang Railway to Nanchang or advance westward along the highway, via Wuning and Hsiushui, on the Canton-Hankow Railway south of Hankow.

Observers on the Juichang front declare that the Japanese, following the failure of two determined attempts to carry the high hills strongly defended by crack Chinese divisions, have definitely abandoned their attempt to break through the Chinese line west of Kiukiang for a march westward along the south bank of the Yangtze. A Japanese advance in this sector, it is stated, must now await the outcome of the Mahweiling battle.

An urgent telephone message received here this afternoon by the Chinese military headquarters said that Mahweiling was still in Chinese hands and that fighting was going on at Mingshan, seven miles south-east of Juichang.

Chinese Aeroplanes Active

Military dispatches from the front report renewed activity by the Chinese Air Force in the operations around the Yangtze.

The activities of the Japanese forces in the vicinity of Juichang, according to Chinese reports, follow several routes. One of these runs south-eastwards to Tehan, a second south-westwards to Wuning, a third westwards to Yanghsin, and a fourth northwards to Matouchen.

After the occupation of Juichang, the Japanese first attempted to capture Matouchen, on the bank of the Yangtze, but their drive, the Chinese reports state, was halted at Tashangshan. The Japanese, it is stated, then attempted to advance westwards towards Yanghsin, but their drive was held up at Moshan and Hungshan.—Reuter.

Three Points in Drive

Three pivotal points in the first line defences of the Wuhan tri-cities in the heart of China faced capture yesterday as the Japanese "big push" in the Yangtze Valley sector hit its stride.

Already being subjected to Japanese artillery fire were Kwangchi, on the northern bank of the Yangtze, controlling the Hwangmei-Kishui highway along which Japanese advance into Hunan province is proceeding; Matouchen on the southern bank of the Yangtze, 32 kilometres upstream from Kiukiang, controlling

Seven Air Squadrons In Action

Kiukiang, Sept. 4.

Seven squadrons of Japanese Army aeroplanes, the largest number in action together since the start of hostilities, bombed the Lushan Mountain area this morning and inflicted heavy losses on retreating Chinese troops, according to Japanese military authorities here.

Leaving their bases at 5 o'clock this morning, the Army airmen roared southwards along the Kiukiang-Nanchang Railway and, co-operating with infantry, bombed Chinese columns falling back to new positions. Chinese soldiers who escaped the bombardments were caught in the strafing from the aerial squadron's machine guns. All the planes returned to their bases undamaged, Japanese commanders claimed.—Domei.

Revolts Among Moors Spell Trouble For Spanish Nationalists

Sacrifices for Gen. Franco Fail to Bring Promised Independence; No Compensation for Dead

Tangiers, Sept. 4.

Spanish Republican circles here regarded yesterday's reported revolts in Tetuan and other points in Spanish Morocco as the beginning of a new period of protest against the Spanish Nationalists which will surpass in Intensity the dangerous situation of last June.

Although yesterday's revolts were readily supressed, unrest in Spanish Morocco has grown and reports of Moorish losses on the Ebro and Estramadura fronts in Spain, which are just beginning to arrive, are believed certain to augment current demonstrations against General Franco, head of the Nationalist forces.

The Moors, who are admitted even by the Nationalists to be the best soldiers in the entire Nationalist army, have won most of Gen. Franco's battles but the cost in Moor lives has been terrific. Moreover, instead of receiving the independence promised by Gen. Franco, the Moors are seeing their country taken over more and more by Germans who have entered military, commercial and political posts through agreement with Gen. Franco in return for German aid to the Nationalists.

The material conditions of life for the Moors in Morocco also have gone down sharply because of the failure of the mainland to provide the necessary goods and it is impossible to import goods from French Morocco because of exchange difficulties.

Thousands of Moorish women and their families have become poverty-stricken as their husbands are killed in Spain and they receive no compensation. The result is that the Moors in Spanish Morocco are politically reaffirming their rights and turning to the Sultan of Morocco, who lives in French Morocco.

The biggest scene of revolt thus far was in June as hundreds of wounded Moors were returned to Morocco when the Nationalists emptied all hospitals on the mainland to make room for Spanish, German and Italian troops wounded in the Castellon offensive. Since that battle, wounded Moors have been shipped directly to Morocco and the population now is learning for the first time the terrible ravages war has made upon their men who went to the front to fight for the Nationalists.—United Press.

Tientsin Mystery Deepens

Peiping Army Headquarters Denies Order to Evacuate Concessions

Peiping, Sept. 4.

The mystery concerning the Japanese evacuation of the Tientsin concessions deepens.

General Terauchi's Headquarters here, after persistent requests for a statement, said yesterday afternoon that no order for the evacuation of the concessions had been issued. No statement to such an effect had been made, it was added.

At least three consuls at Tientsin, it is learned, have been officially informed by the Japanese Consul that the evacuation has been ordered to be completed by September 15.

It is also reported that the South Manchuria Railway offices have already been removed from the Concessions, while other offices and private residences continue to be evacuated.

The "Journal de Pekin," published here, had the whole of yesterday's edition seized by the Japanese authorities on arrival by train at Tientsin. No reason has yet been given for this action. The paper is a French daily, of a semi-official character.—Reuter.

Officials Ordered to Leave

Tientsin, Sept. 4.

Chinese officials of the "Provisional Government" residing in the foreign concessions were ordered yesterday afternoon to be ready to move out at a few hours' notice. Foreign residents remain calm but are puzzled by the action.

A leading local Chinese daily newspaper, regarded as the mouthpiece of the Japanese, in a recent article suggested that, in the event of war in Europe, Japan would participate in accordance with her agreements with Italy and Germany and might then try to occupy foreign-controlled areas in China.

Individual Japanese and also smaller firms are gradually leaving the British and French Concessions, while some large firms have moved their administrative offices elsewhere, although difficulty has been experienced in securing accommodation.

At present, the Japanese Residents' Association is conferring on the situation, but until now has given no indication of its ultimate decision in regard to the original order for all Japanese to retire from the neutral areas.—Reuter.

Greece Introduces Social Measures

Wage Contracts and Help For Large Families

Athens, Sept. 4.

An important social measure was inaugurated in Greece, according to a press announcement made yesterday by Premier Metaxas, this consisting of collective contracts for industries and the creation of a fund for assisting large families, widows, and mothers of small children.

In the case of collective contracts, the Government reserves the right to fix minimum wages which in the contracts already completed amounts to between 10 and 12 per cent. more than the present scale for men and between five and six per cent. for women.

The relief fund will be made up of deductions of one drachme from the wage of men and 50 Lepta from that of women.

The Premier emphasized the importance of this step which represents a significant move by the Greek Government in the direction of social legislation.—Trans-Ocean.

Wuchang Fears End of Power Supplies

Hankow, Sept. 4.

A possible cessation of the Wuchang power supply is foreshadowed in this morning's papers, which contain an announcement by the Wuchang Power Company reading as follows:—

"In view of the shortage of coal, there is a danger of an interruption of the power supply at any moment. The populace of Wuchang is urged to prepare candles and kerosene lamps to be used in the event of an emergency."—Reuter.

H.M.S. Hood Ordered To Gibraltar

London, Sept. 4.

Owing to the presence of several Nationalist warships outside Gibraltar, the Admiralty has ordered the battle-cruiser Hood to return to the Straits of Gibraltar immediately.

The Hood is the largest warship in the world, displacing 42,000 tons, and is under the command of Vice-Admiral Cunningham. Three destroyers patrolling in accordance with the Nyon agreement are also expected in Gibraltar shortly.—Havas.

American Election Scandal

California Adds to Inquiry Body's Evidence; President Pushes Campaign

Washington, Sept. 3.

CHARGES of political election irregularities accumulated at the headquarters of the Congressional Committee investigating current election practices today from fourteen states as political observers predicted one of the most sensational investigations of the American political system in years. A Committee member revealed tonight that new charges of irregularities in California had been added to the Committee's vast amount of information, but the nature of the charges were not disclosed.

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt pushed his campaign to purge Congress of conservative Democrats and Republicans. Political strategists believed the President's battle against conservative Democrats was an effort to enable the liberal Democrats to name the Democratic Presidential candidate in 1940. They refused to speculate, however, whether the President himself hoped to be the liberal nominee.

President Roosevelt is preparing to invade the Maryland agricultural areas on Monday. These areas are regarded as firm supporters of Senator Millard E. Tydings, Democrat, whom the President is seeking to defeat in the forthcoming Democratic primary elections. Small businessmen and farmers in these areas have been making a campaign issue of the New Deal's close association with the Committee for Industrial Organization, which has brought some hardships on small business and farmers through strikes which prevented disposal of farm products and caused price increases in goods which farmers must buy.

Hopes to Win Maryland

The New Deal apparently hopes to win Maryland where a defeat would be a more serious blow to the President than the recent set-back suffered in South Carolina. Maryland will be more significant because the President has taken a stronger personal hand in the Maryland campaign, observers pointed out.

The United Press has been informed that the President has no intention of discarding the Democratic Party label or of divorcing the party from the conservative elements. Official sources said he intends to project the issue of liberalism so prominently that the voters will elect liberal majorities in Congress.—United Press.

Soviet's Migration Scheme

Peasants Urged to Settle In Eastern Siberia

Moscow, Sept. 3.

The Government of the U.S.S.R. is making efforts to encourage peasants to move to Eastern Siberia in order to increase the population in that part of the country. Families deciding to establish themselves there will be granted considerable facilities.

The effort is being made now particularly to colonize the upper banks of the Zeya and Selendija rivers. The Zeya is a tributary of the Amur, which it joins near Blagovechtchensk, while the Selendija is the tributary of the Zeya. This region, near the Manchoukuo border, is favourable to agriculture and stock-breeding, which is starting to be developed there. It is also rich in gold and coal, besides several other minerals. The construction of railways is being actively pursued in that district.

Each family willing to establish itself in Eastern Siberia will receive one and a half hectares of land and will eventually be entitled to eight hectares. It will also receive a cabin at the expense of the state and 400 roubles to be repayable in three years, and 300 kilograms of various foodstuffs to be repayable in kind in two years.

New collective farms created in that district will be fitted out with seeds, and agricultural machines to cultivate the soil at the expense of the state which will also build public buildings in each new centre, such as schools, libraries and hospitals. The colonization department of the Home Commissariat has already received many requests from peasants attracted by the offer.—Havas.

Tea Control Scheme Helps Industry

Full Recovery Expected on Expiry of Plan

London, Sept. 4.

Although the five-year tea control scheme has not yet achieved its full results, the plan has greatly helped to re-establish the industry and has brought back prosperity to many concerns which were facing ruin, stated the fifth report of the International Tea Committee issued today.

It is anticipated that five years will be sufficient for the recovery of the industry and the relinquishing of regulation, but the increased absorption of tea is not sufficient to permit the committee to raise the quota beyond 87½ per cent.

Smuggling of unlicensed tea from India is still practised, the report added, and, despite preventive measures, considerable quantities are shipped to Aden.—Reuter.

Netherlands Tug Held By Chinese

Canton Authorities Detain Harbour Works Vessel

Hongkong, Sept. 4.

The forty-ton Netherlands tug Reinier, property of the Netherlands Harbour Works, which was due to arrive back here on August 17 after a trip to Bocca Tigris, but failed to enter port, is being detained by the Chinese military authorities, at Bocca Tigris, states the Hongkong "Sunday Herald."

Negotiations are at present proceeding between the owners and the Chinese authorities for the release of the vessel, the paper states. The owners decline to reveal the reason for the ship being detained.

The Reinier, commanded by Captain de Schipper, was towing lighters loaded with limestone when detained by the Chinese.—Reuter.

Zionist Congress Convenes

Antwerp Gathering Likely To Be Largest in Years; Important Agenda

Antwerp, Sept. 3.

A hundred delegates from the United States, all European countries, the Netherlands East Indies and South Africa arrived here tonight for the opening of the biggest Zionist Congress in several years.

The Congress, which opens tonight, will discuss the partition of Palestine and other problems facing Jews including Nazi and Fascist prosecution of Jews.

Delegates who arrived here today included the most famous Jewish leaders from all parts of the world. Among them was Rabbi Goldman, new President of the Zion Organization of America. Rabbi Goldman had just completed a 1,000 mile motor tour through Italy before coming here.

Rabbi Goldman told the United Press that in Italy he had found dissatisfaction everywhere with Signor Benito Mussolini's anti-Semitic policy. He said he believed this latest Italian imitation of the German Nazis would not last long because of popular opposition.—United Press.

More Drastic Plans in Italy

Rome, Sept. 4.

The decree passed by the Italian Council of Ministers on Friday for the purging of schools and universities as well as learned societies of Jewish influence, is likely to be followed by similar measures for removing Jews from other fields of activity, according to Italian evening papers yesterday which intimate that the forthcoming Fascist Grand Council will deal with the problem in a still more drastic manner.

The "Giornale d'Italia" compares the action against Jews in teaching professions with the drainage of swamps as an outstanding accomplishment of the Fascist Government. Without hesitation or equivocation, the decree removed Jews from the intellectual sphere without, however, depriving them of the right of existence, states the paper which goes on to intimate significantly "in confident faith, Italy awaits the decisions of the Fascist Grand Council."

Writing in the same vein, the "Tevere" declares that the Jewish influence must be removed from the army, the field of justice and political organizations. The paper also intimates that the Grand Council will deal with the problem of persons who are only half-Jewish in order to solve the problem definitely and finally. Immediate resignation by Jews from all positions in the governmental and economic spheres is demanded by the paper "Resto del Carlino" which states "it is wiser to descend from a horse upon own initiative than to wait until being pushed from the saddle." This demand is not restricted to Jews occupying "honorary posts" but applies to all those holding leading positions or membership on the board of control of important industries, financial organizations, syndicates and corporative associations.—Trans-Ocean.

Academy To Take Part

Rome, Sept. 4.

The Italian Academy is to take part officially in a racial policy. Its President has appointed a commission which will be entrusted with the study of influence exerted by Judaism on the life of the country since the Roman Empire until the present.

The report to be made by the commission will be read on November 20 on the occasion of the inauguration of the new academic year.—Havas.

Six Persons Drowned In U.S. Floods

Resort Town in Colorado Nearly Wiped Out

Denver, Colo., Sept. 3.

Six persons were known dead and more than a dozen were missing today after "flash" floods threatened to add disaster to the flood areas near here.

New rains, resulting in sudden new floods, pounded down from the Rocky Mountains today, hitting with greatest force and destruction in the Morrison and Eldorado Springs areas. Only two buildings were left standing in the resort town of Morrison where five persons were drowned.

Federal officials organized relief parties tonight to invade the flood area to rescue hundreds of persons endangered by the floods. Plans for the establishment of refugee camps were completed and the Red Cross mobilized workers to care for injured flood victims and to fight disease.—United Press.

Egyptian Minister Sees Arms Works

Country's Purchases May Be Made on Continent

Cairo, Sept. 4.

The Egyptian War Minister, Hassan Sabri Pasha, is at the present time visiting French and Belgian munitions factories, a fact which has aroused considerable interest here in view of the Anglo-Egyptian agreement to the effect that Egypt must purchase armaments from British factories.

It is pointed out that England has not been able to make the deliveries with the desired rapidity and that Egypt is considering with the consent of England the advisability of purchasing from other countries.

The War Minister will visit London in the middle of this month for negotiations regarding further deliveries of war material.—Trans-Ocean.

Yangtze Friction Denied

Tokyo Issues Statement on Incident Involving Monocacy and Cockchafer

Tokyo, Sept. 4.

REPORTS alleging friction between Japanese naval officers, on the one hand, and British and American commanders, on the other, at Kiukiang were emphatically denied here yesterday in a special statement issued by Rear-Admiral Kiyoshi Noda, director of Information of the Naval Section of the Imperial General Headquarters. Special exception was taken by Rear-Admiral Noda to a report, disseminated from Hankow, which, by implication, suggested that Japanese minesweepers at Kiukiang had carried on operations with the deliberate intent of damaging the U.S.S. Monocacy on August 28.

Basing his statement on a report from the Japanese commander at Kiukiang, Rear-Admiral Noda said on the date in question, a Japanese naval officer visited H.M.S. Cockchafer and U.S.S. Monocacy to inform their commanders of the discovery of about 20 mines near a point 500 metres downstream from the British gunboat which was anchored at the Kiukiang wharf. The Monocacy was then anchored 200 metres upstream from the Cockchafer, according to the statement.

The Japanese officer requested the British and American commanders to move their anchorage to a point about one mile upstream from their original locations so as to prevent any damage during the proposed Japanese mine-sweeping operations.

Gunboats Tackle Mines

The captain of the British vessel, the statement continued, said that he had already carried out mine-sweeping operations within a radius of 300 metres from the Cockchafer. He further pointed out that he did not feel that his vessel would be endangered by the explosions of mines at a point 200 metres away.

The captain of the American vessel also declared that he did not see the necessity of moving the Monocacy inasmuch as she was 700 metres distant from the scene of the mine-sweeping operations.

The Japanese officer, the statement said, did not insist that the vessels be moved, but reiterated the wish of his superiors that the British and American gunboats transfer their anchorages to a point one mile upstream from their original positions. The conversations were carried out in a most friendly atmosphere, a fact which has since been confirmed by the American and British officers.

20 Mines Destroyed

Japanese minesweepers subsequently started operations from a point upstream from the two gunboats towards the mine-field downriver. A mine, the statement declared, was found at a point 200 metres from the Cockchafer, within the zone previously cleared by the British vessel. In view of its proximity to the American and British gunboats, the mine was not destroyed but was prevented from further drifting. It was subsequently disposed of by the Cockchafer, according to the statement.

Twenty mines were destroyed by the Japanese sweepers in the course of this operation. The statement emphasized that "no unpleasant episode" occurred between the Japanese Navy and the American and British gunboats during these operations.—Domei.

With regard to the drawing which took place at the Canidrome on August 17, the Directors wish, publicly, to acknowledge the assistance rendered by Messrs: C. Ballandras, Chang Yi Chu, A. S. Jaspar, Hugh Martin, T. F. Mullahey, A. W. Olsen, C. W. Canadian-British Bonds Stressed

Journal Sees Co-operation In Case of War

Ottawa, Sept. 4.

In an editorial on the scheme for the supply of Air Force bombers by Canadian firms, the "Ottawa Citizen," referring to "much vain talk about the possibility of Canadian neutrality in the event of another war involving the United Kingdom," states:—

"Whatever constitutional theory there may be about Canadian neutrality, the daily evidence is that Canada is already obligated by the rules of the game to associate Canadian with British resources in war, as well as in the present armed peace."—Reuter.

Parsees Mark New Year Tomorrow

Calendar Mistake Divides Co-Religionists Into Two Opposing Factions

The former glory of the ancient Persian empire will be celebrated tomorrow when Parsees, of whom there is a large Shanghai community, observe the advent of their new year, which is the 1308th of the era of Yezdezard, the last Persian monarch of the Sassanian dynasty. Owing to an unfortunate muddle in the Zoroastrian calendar, however, there is a difference of one month between the year of Persians Zoroastrians in Persia and that of their co-religionist Parsees living in India.

The Zoroastrian year consists of 365¼ days, divided into 12 months each of 30 days. At the end of 360 days five additional or complimentary days called "Gathas" are added, making, in reality a year consisting of 365 days only. In ancient Iran (Persia) it was customary to add one month at the end of every one hundred and twenty years, in order to surmount the loss of quarter days, thus bringing their calendar in line with and in strict accordance with the calculation of the Solar year.

This process of intercalation of one month was known in ancient Persia as "Kabisseh," and it is said that those Persian Zoroastrians who remained in hiding in Persia after the fall of their Empire either forgot, or through their ignorance, neglected to intercalate one month at the proper time of the "Kabisseh," whilst those Zoroastrians who fled to India from the mountains of Khorosan had continued this intercalary month at the proper time due for "Kabisseh."

Calendar Discrepancy

The result of this unfortunate muddle is that the Persian Zoroastrians in Persia are one month ahead in their calculations of the Parsees in India, and while the latter will celebrate the 1308th year of Yezdezerd on September 6, their brother co-religionists in Persia have already entered upon the new year of their era, the advent being celebrated on August 7.

This mistake in the calculation was discovered late in the year 1720 A.D., when a learned Persian Zoroastrian priest escaped from Persia and landed at Surat. The discrepancy has had the effect of creating two sharp divisions among the Parsees of India as some of them are divided into parties or schisms one group calling themselves "Kadmis" or "ancients" from the Persian derivative "Kuadmin" meaning ancient or old. The other sect is styled the "Shahanshais" which means "Imperials" or those following the ancient usage of the Persian Empire.

It goes without saying, however, that both parties are wrong. It is evident from the "Avesta" or Zoroastrian scriptures that the ancient Iranians regulated and adjusted their calendar by observing the custom of "Kabissa" or intercalation, but the Parsees in India have failed to observe, owing to the precarious conditions under which they had to live for centuries in India and to the constant fear of religious persecution, the "Kabissa" for nearly thirteen centuries. Therefore the present calendar virtually does not admit of more than 365 days of their Solar year, which brings it out of reckoning.

Dr. West in his "Sacred Book of the East" and Dr. Hope Moulton in his "Early Zoroastrianism" express a belief that the Zoroastrian calendar was reformed and brought up to date by Darius Hystaspses in the year 500 B.C.

Four Killed as Row of Houses Collapse

Nine Victims of Disaster Include Women and Child

Three Chinese women and a male child were killed just before noon yesterday when a row of Chinese houses which were being constructed off Edinburgh Road collapsed, burying the victims beneath heaps of débris.

Also injured in the collapse were five other Chinese, all men, including two carpenters who were working on the row of dwellings. Both the dead and the injured were removed to the Red Cross Hospital where the five men are detained suffering from multiple injuries which are considered as dangerous by the hospital authorities.

The houses were situated off Edinburgh Road on the east side, between Yu Yuen and Great Western Roads. Immediately after the collapse an ambulance was summoned from the Bubbling Well Station from where two fire engines were despatched to clear away the débris.

Finding that one ambulance was not sufficient, two more ambulances were requested and these arrived within a few minutes from the Ichang Road and Sinza stations. Under the direction of a foreign officer, Chinese firemen hurriedly cleared away the débris under the rays of the broiling sun and one by one the victims were brought out suffering from terrible injuries.

Owing to the fact that the injured were situated in different parts of the block of houses, the task of the firemen was made extremely difficult, but heroic work on their part probably saved the lives of the five men who would have been slowly crushed to death had not the débris been removed so speedily. The cause of the collapse is being investigated.

Milady May Wear Silver Fox Furs This Winter—But Not in Japan

Government Proposes to Prohibit Domestic Sales; Pelts for Export Purposes Only

Tokyo, Sept. 4.

Stylish Japanese women no longer will be able to display silver foxes with their winter attire if plans of export-conscious Government officials materialize.

The report brought consternation to many a feminine heart, but approbation of the contemplated move was given today by husbands who see savings of Y.400 upwards if the silver-flecked pelts become unavailable for their spouses.

To increase the national income through exports, the Commerce and Industry Ministry will prohibit the domestic sale of silver fox furs beginning from this winter. A conference of officials of the Agriculture and Forestry Ministry, the Commerce and Industry Ministry and the Saghalien and Hokkaido Offices will be held soon to decide the matter formally, according to the reports.

Although the production of silver fox furs amounted to some 21,276 last year, only 1,624 were exported on an average price of Y.55 apiece, the export of the total production should net Y.1,200,000, an attractive contribution to the trade balance.

The Commerce and Industry Ministry is planning to produce about 20,000 furs in Saghalien, the Kuriles and the Hokkaido, realizing about Y.1,300,000 through exports this year. As a result of the new policy, the furs customarily available in October will be available again this year—but only for the lucky fashionable women of some other country.—Domei.

In the Russian Colony

By "Stroy"

Russians in Shanghai of a religious nature and turn of mind watch with great interest the continuing process of merging between the Russian Orthodox Church and the Anglican Church evidenced in England. Each year this idea finds more and more supporters both in that country and among Russians. As far back as a hundred years ago an interesting correspondence was carried on between a famous Russian writer and philosopher Homiakoff—an expert on the history of the Orthodox Byzantine Church — and Prof. Palmer of Oxford University, author of the book, "The Harmony Between the Anglican Doctrine and the Doctrine of the Eastern Orthodox Church." The Crimean War, when Russia and England found themselves in hostile camps, temporarily disrupted this spiritual affinity, but already in the sixties of the past century a "Society of Eastern Churches" was formed in London. This organization is in existence today, publishing a magazine and holding assemblies attended by Anglican, Greek, Russian, Bulgarian and Serbian clergy. A short time ago another organization came into being —"The Brotherhood of St. Albanius and St. Sergius," in whose formation Russian emigrants took an active—if not leading—part. In Shanghai, too, attempts are being made to draw together the Russian and Anglican clergy; and in this respect Russians specially note the interest in the idea evinced by Dean A. S. Trivett.

"The Brotherhood of St. Albanius and St. Sergius" sprang from a Christian student movement in Europe — or, to be more exact, from its Russian branch in Paris. In some of its phases this movement overlaps the work of the Y.M.C.A. in Paris, whose secretary, Mr. Anderson, a stanch friend of Russians in that city, has formed a publishing concern and is, in general, creating a centre of Russian philosophy and culture, with contacts with centres of Anglo-Saxon culture. Started by a small group of English and Russian priests and laymen, the Confraternity at present numbers 650 members, 120 of whom are Russians and the rest English. Most of them are priests or students of theology, but laymen, and even women, are not excluded. The centres of the study of Orthodoxy in England are the country's two main theological colleges, where Russian professors are invited, give lectures, and are afforded the opportunity of writing and working in a cloistered atmosphere. Russian students are often taken in for a year or even more, thus being given a knowledge of things English and spiritual and social contacts which can be theirs through life.

French and Russians

That the doors of the French Concession are equally wide open to Russian emigrés as for all men, whatever their nationality, who are willing to lead peaceful and lawful lives was stressed by the French Consul-General M. Augé in an interview just given to the "Shanghai Zaria." The Consul-General repudiated rumours circulated by certain parties that the attitude of the French authorities towards Russian emigrés has changed, and was generous in his praise of the work of Russian Volunteers doing duty in the Concession. M. Augé also denied there was any truth in the rumour that charitable work carried on by Concession authorities in aid of indigent Russians will be discontinued. A still more eloquent denial, he suggested, is supplied by the fact that whereas previously the bank of the Charitable Fund set aside $80,000 for this work, the sum has now been increased to $100,000.

True, certain alterations in the organization of this charity work have been made, as the authorities are willing to help only those Russians who are honest and willing to work and are in a state of poverty through no fault of their own. But those men, stated M. Augé, who in the past have made a business of being indigent, and have contrived to receive aid from two or three places at the same time, will have to remain without the benefit of charity in the future. Furthermore, the French authorities will dispense help only to permanent residents of the Concession, as no sum would be sufficient to give aid to the temporary, chance and transient elements. For this reason only people who have lived for two years in the Concession will be given help. M. Augé said that every day he signs at least one order for appointment of some Russian to this or another position, and this in itself repudiates any rumour that the authorities have changed in their attitude towards Russian emigrés. "I am myself a former officer and whatever regime there may be in Russia, I can never forget that during the War of 1914-1918 we Frenchmen fought side by side with the valiant Russian Army for a common cause."

Russian Businessmen

The number of Russian businessmen at present working in Shanghai exceeds six hundred, according to data recently given to the Russian press by Mr. V. I. Dukin, Chairman of the Society of Russian Businessmen and Industrialists. Not more than 200 of them, however, belong to this Society, although its services as a sort of Russian Chamber of Commerce are made use of by all. Mr. Dukin pointed out that throughout its years of existence it has made contacts with local Chinese and foreign Chambers of Commerce, given information on the credit of its members, supplied guarantees, collected data on the quantity and quality of goods of interest to Russian businessmen, and protected the interests of its members before governmental and consular departments and authorities. Mr. Dukin is optimistic on the future of Russian trade in Shanghai, and is certain that the coming business season will be a much more profitable one than that of last year.

With the approach of winter the Russian colony is ruminating, not without anxiety, on the fact that in addition to speculation on rooms and flats, in addition to the general soar of prices, (including prices on food), Shanghai will soon have to face the consequences of a coal shortage. Companies selling coal by retail are already unable to supply the demands of those who, foreseeing future jumps in price, are trying to stock up with this fuel which during summer is out of mind but without which life in December or January in Shanghai,—especially in the squalid little rooms and terraces occupied by so many Russians—becomes impossible.

School Examinations

Entrance examinations have commenced in all Russian schools in Shanghai, and pupils are being tested on lessons to have been learnt during the summer months. Boys and girls are returning from summer resorts, and towards the middle of September the autumn term will commence.

The newly-formed Shanghai Armenian Charity Society has already been registered by the French Consulate-General. With its office in 269 Rue Maresca, the Society is first of all setting up an Armenian Prayer House, to be opened when Archimandrite Father Asogik will arrive here from Harbin. Last Saturday the Society held a Children's Evening, when a juvenile play, "Master Peter," was acted in the Armenian, and short numbers were given by Mr. A. Tchakalian (piano), Mr. N. Karganov, (singing), and Mr. S. Ambarian (recital.) All day the Armenian national flag, composed of the colours red, blue and orange flew over the building.

Russian newspapers devote much space to the life of the Russian colony in Tsingtao, which, with the altered political situation in that city is experiencing many changes. In the near future a newspaper will be published in the Russian language by the Tsingtao branch of the Anti-Communist Committee, the authorities having given it a well-equipped printing press.

Sporting Prowess

Arriving in Shanghai with the Tientsin tennis team, the Russian tennis champion Mr. M. Ferber tells that the majority of Russian sportsmen in Tientsin have united under the Russian Sporting Association. The Tientsin Tennis Club, 90 per cent. of whose members are Russian, holds, in addition to closed competitions, competitions for the championship of Russian Tientsin, and puts up a Russian team for the city's international competitions. Mr. Ferber is the present tennis champion of Russian Tientsin. In the sphere of football, the Russian team lost their first place in the city's league, last year. Bad luck, too, has of late dogged Russian boxers, and Mr. Velizoff, at one time the star of the Tientsin boxing world, has slipped from that position. In ice-hockey however, Russian sportsmen have no equal, and their team composed of Fingaret, the Brothers Skorniakov, Tulenev and Sosnin hold the city's premier position.

The Society of Russian Employees of the Business Concern of Shanghai, which was formed for purposes of mutual aid and the protection of professional interests, has been registered by the French authorities and is opening its office in 478 Rue Cardinal Mercier. New members are continually joining this Society.

Husband Begs for Wife's Release

Press and Radio Used for Appeal to Kidnappers in California

Yuba City, Calif, Sept. 4.

Mr. W. R. Meeks, husband of the prominent Sacramento Valley woman who was kidnapped by two white masked gangsters several days ago, tonight appealed to the kidnappers through the press and radio to arrange for negotiations for his wife's release.

Mr. Meeks appealed to the kidnappers after hopes that his 58 year-old wife was still alive had faded. Clues found near the Meeks ranch indicated that Mrs. Meeks had been injured during the abduction.

Meanwhile, one of the greatest man hunts in California history was under way in search of the kidnappers. Two companies of National Guard troops, ordered out by Governor Frank F. Merriam in an unprecedented move, participated in the ever widening search. Scores of aroused farmers also joined in the search for the kidnappers after the Governor announced that "Kidnappers cannot exist in California.

Federal "G-Men", under orders of Mr. J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, led the hunt for the kidnappers and missing woman during the first days of the case. They withdrew tonight, however, when no evidence developed to indicate any Federal law had been violated. Federal kidnapping laws are not broken unless a kidnapper crosses a state border.

More than 500 men, most armed with shotguns and carrying ropes for a lynching party if the kidnappers are found, searched orchard lands near the Meeks ranch for the kidnappers tonight. Before withdrawing from the case, Federal "G-Men" told the posse to look for two rough clad peach pickers who entered the Meeks home at 2 a.m. several nights ago. Both wore white masks and were armed. They gagged and bound Mr. Meeks and fled with Mrs. Meeks in the Meeks own automobile.—United Press.

Fourth Marines Church

Another large congregation was present yesterday morning in the Grand Theatre for the Fourth Marines' service and concert. The Fourth Marines' drum and trumpet corps were presented as a special feature of the concert programme, uniting with the band to render the striking march "With Trumpet and Drum" by Weldon. An appreciative audience tendered a great ovation to this excellent unit for its outstanding rendition. Capably directed by Staff Sergeant William R. Stuart, the Fourth Marines Band included in their renditions the overture "Poet and Peasant" by Suppe, the beautiful waltz "Southern Roses" by Strauss and Bizet's world famed "Carmen." Concluding the band played the popular Marines' Hymn and the American National Anthem.

In the church service which preceded the concert, Chaplain R. R. Marken delivered a most interesting and uplifting sermon on "The Greatest Game In The World," comparing the games of football and life and the importance of a good kick-off or start. Opening the service the Fourth Marines' Band played "Coeur Brise" by Gillet and also for the offertory "Spring Morning" by Arensky. Guest soloist in the service was Mr. H. H. Cameron, tenor who sang the selection "The Ninety and Nine" by Campion. As an added musical feature, Private First Class Milton W. Potter, of the Marine Band, rendered saxaphone solo "Softly and Tenderly" by Thompson. Hymns sung in the service were led by Sergeant Sheehan with musical accompaniment by the band.

So you have the jitters?

Read this message clear to the end—don't skip one word!

IT IS a gloomy moment in history. Not for many years—not in the lifetime of most men who read this—has there been so much grave and deep apprehension; never has the future seemed so incalculable as at this time. In our own country there is universal commercial prostration and panic, and thousands of our poorest fellow-citizens are turned out against the approaching winter without employment, and without the prospect of it.

"In France the political caldron seethes and bubbles with uncertainty; Russia hangs, as usual, like a cloud, dark and silent, upon the horizon of Europe; while all the energies, resources and influences of the British Empire are sorely tried, and are yet to be tried more sorely, in coping with the vast and deadly disturbed relations in China.

"It is a solemn moment, and no man can feel an indifference—which, happily, no man pretends to feel—in the issue of events.

"Of our own troubles no man can see the end. They are, fortunately, as yet mainly commercial; and if we are only to lose money, and by painful poverty to be taught wisdom — the wisdom of honor, of faith, of sympathy and of charity — no man need seriously to despair. And yet the very haste to be rich, which is the occasion of this widespread calamity, has also tended to destroy the moral forces with which we are to resist and subdue the calamity."

That quotation is 81 years old! It appeared in Harper's Weekly, October 10, 1857. Amazed? Why? The leaves turn green every Spring. The small streams rush to the sea. History makes carbon copies of itself. There's nothing new about jitters. People have had them, will have them again. People have recovered from them, will recover again.

THE ss. Somali, carrying a mixed cargo from the Far East was unloading in London when an unusual mortality among the rats on board was discovered, whereupon unloading was stopped and the vessel fumigated throughout; as a result 432 rats were found. When the unloading was completed the ship was again fumigated, and 103 more rats were discovered. Tests for possible plague infection were negative. For a ship of the tonnage of the Somali; it is estimated that about 50 rats would be normal.

HUNSTANTON, with a resident population of more than 4,000, considerably increased in the holiday season, lays claim to be the safest town in England. It has completed its sixth year without a single road fatality and 20 years without a bathing fatality. Often 1,000 cars pass in an hour as it carries the heaviest traffic in the country with the exception of the London/Brighton road. There are no traffic lights, Belisha beacons roundabouts or one-way streets in the town. A good understanding between police and motorists was put forward as being the reason responsible for this.

WHEN workmen were engaged in digging a trench to lay a pipe to the guardroom at Windsor Castle, they found their work held up by a thick wall, which took several hours of drilling and blasting to make a passage through. Examination of old plans and prints of the castle show that the wall is part of the foundations of a look-out tower built by Edward III in 1340. The tower formed part of the outer wall of the castle. The foundations were so thick and solid that when the guardroom and the present wall were built it was found impossible to destroy them completely.

A CONSIDERABLE quantity of jewellery was recently stolen, consisting mainly of silver articles, among them antique trays and salvers, when thieves broke into the Cedars, Horton, Buckinghamshire during Tuesday night. The Cedars is the residence of the Hon. Mrs. Ernest Bowes-Lyon, an aunt of the Queen. And entry was obtained through a French window at the back of the house. Four rooms had been thoroughly searched. It is believed that the thieves probably had a car waiting in the road at the back of the house, which stands in a secluded part of the village.

FRIENDS of Maestro Paci and music lovers in general will be interested to learn that his health is much improved since his departure on sick leave. A recent letter states that on August 27, he was guest conductor of the Turin Orchestra the programme being broadcast over short wave. Unfortunately, however, although it was known in Shanghai that the Maestro was broadcasting from Turin, due to atmospherics it was impossible to hear anything. The Turin Orchestra with 80 musicians is one of the finest in Europe; The Maestro's programme included, as he stated in a letter "some of my best and most-loved works".... the Franck Symphphony, Tommasini's "Serenate" and the "Walk to the Paradise Garden" by Delius. The last-named is an English work. Maestro Paci is due back in Shanghai after his leave towards the end of the current month when it is hoped that he will have recovered sufficiently to rehearse and conduct the Municipal Orchestra with all his old vigour.

THE two dolls, France and Marianne, presented to Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret by the children of France, have been delivered at Buckingham Palace. Hundreds of thousands of French schoolchildren subscribed to buy these gifts to mark the recent visit of the King and Queen to France. The dolls travelled with two toy motor-cars and 20 pieces of luggage containing frocks of the latest fashion. The packing case in which they were received at the French Embassy weighed one and three quarter tons, was 14 feet long, and was addressed to "Les Princesses Elizabeth et Margaret-Rose," and bore the inscription "Envoi de Madame Georges Bonnet au nom des Enfants de France." Mme. Georges Bonnet is the wife of the French Foreign Minister. The lovely dolls—one blonde and one brunette—are elaborately equipped, and all the traditional French taste, workmanship and artistry have been expended on the trousseaux which accompany them Each doll has about 40 dresses, in 1938 autumn styles adapted from those of the Parisian couturieres.

U.S. Develops War Preparations

Funds Voted to Maintain Key Manufacturing Plants In Readiness

Washington, Sept. 3.

The War Department today intensified American preparations for war through broadening the scope of the Government's industrial mobilization programme which will convert the nation's thousands of factories into war supplies manufacturers on "M-Day"—the day America goes to war.

Simultaneously, the Assistant Secretary of War, Mr. Louis Johnson, announced that President Roosevelt had approved of $2,000,000 in "educational orders" to key manufacturing plants for the manufacture of military materials and equipment. The "educational orders" will enable the plants to provide equipment models and materials not regularly manufactured on a commercial scale.

The industrial mobilization programme is not new to the United States, having been mapped out following the Great War. Last year, however, a complete investigation of the programme revealed that hundreds of earlier agreements with manufacturers had lapsed because of deaths or change of ownership. Since then the War Department has pushed forward with the programme which now has been completely renovated.

The mobilization programme would convert America's hundreds of commercial factories into the greatest war supplies production unit in history within a few weeks after the outbreak of war.—United Press.

Cleveland, Sept. 3.

Miss Jacqueline Cochran, successor to Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam as America's most famous aviatrix, won the U.S.$30,000 Bendix Trophy Race today and continued across the nation to Bendix, N.J. to establish a new trans-continental speed record for women.

Miss Cochran's elapsed time between Los Angeles and Cleveland was 8 hours 10 minutes 31.4 seconds and her record-breaking time between coasts was 10 hours, 12 minutes and 55 seconds.

Flying the plane in which Major Alexander de Seversky broke the east-west trans-continental speed record this week, Miss Cochran averaged 249.774 miles an hour between Los Angeles and Cleveland. Her time between Los Angeles and Cleveland was 16 minutes slower than the record established last year by Mr. Frank Fuller who finished second in the race today.

Fuller's elapsed time between Los Angeles and Cleveland was 24 minutes slower than Miss Cochran. He also trailed Miss Cochran when the leading planes reached Bendix, N.J., to complete the trans-continental dash.—United Press.

Anti-Cholera Week For Hongkew

Japanese Redouble Health Precautions

Intensifying their drive to suppress cholera in the Japanese community, Japanese military authorities and consular police are supervising inoculations among Japanese and Chinese residents in Hongkew during the week from September 3 to 10, the "Mainichi" reported yesterday.

Clinics were opened for the public at the East, North and Central Japanese Primary Schools, Consular Police Station at Yangtszepoo and in a lot on Woosung Road. On Saturday 839 Japanese, 518 men and 326 women, were inoculated, while the shots were given to 675 Chinese, including 572 men and 103 women, making a total of 1,514.

Japanese authorities are complaining that residents of Hongkew are not sufficiently aroused to the menace of cholera, the "Mainichi" said.

MORE than 100 depositors in the bank of the former City Government of Greater Shanghai, which was closed down following the opening of hostilities last autumn, have addressed a telegram to the President of the Executive Yuan and concurrently Minister of Finance, Dr. H. H. Kung, asking him to arrange for the refunding of their deposits at an early date, says the "Sin Wan Pao." The telegraphic appeal stressed the urgent need for an early return of the funds which form the means of subsistence for 200 depositors and their families. Referring to a previous order of the Ministry for the reopening of Chinese banks in occupied areas, the telegram deemed it much more necessary for "a bank which is located in the International Settlement here" to resume its business operations.

Meanwhile, official figures revealed that 175 persons were killed and 68 others are still missing as a result of the typhoon which hit Tokyo early this week. Ships sunk totalled 366, mostly of the small fishing type. An estimated 3,912 houses were destroyed.—United Press.

the Yangtze "bottle neck" area, and Tehan, the "gateway to Nanchang" on the railway line linking Kiukiang with the Kiangsi provincial capital.

Meantime, further north, along the Anhwei-Honan border, Japanese troops were steadily continuing their advance westward following the capture of Yehkiatsi near the provincial frontier.

Intensive aerial activity, with mass flights of Japanese military and naval aircraft blasting the way in hilly terrain for the advancing infantry in the place of artillery, held back by a lack of roads and other transit facilities, continued to feature the operations.

Skirting the Yangtze, along the narrow strip of land between the river and Chi Hu, the Red Lake, Japanese Army forces, co-operating with the naval landing party under Lieut.-Commander Kitaro Haji, at 8 o'clock yesterday morning reached Iwanpu, four kilometres southeast of Wusueh. A boom has been sunk in the river by the Chinese between Matouchen and Wusueh.

On the left flank of this Japanese column, in the hills north of Juichang, 10 Chinese divisions remained out of the original 30 holding this sector. Included among those there was the crack 58th Central Army Division.

Little resistance was, however, offered by these Chinese troops when attacked on Saturday night by a Japanese force striking out of Juichang, Domei dispatches from the front stated yesterday. The Japanese thrust resulted in the capture of Chengshan overlooking Chi Hu.

Many Chinese Casualties

Meishan, northwest of Juichang was also claimed having been taken without much opposition on yesterday morning, but violent engagements were reported from the area southwest of Juichang where the Japanese were attacking Chinese positions at Shekialung, 16 kilometres away.

In a determined offensive launched at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, Japanese troops were claimed to have succeeded in putting to rout six Chinese divisions defending the approaches to Kwangchi, reaching a point 8 kilometres from the strategic Hupeh city. The capture of Kwangchi would open the rear of the Chinese forces at Wusueh on the river bank to a Japanese attack.

While major progress was claimed to have been made by Japanese troops striking directly south from Kiukiang towards Tehan, spirited counter-attacks by Chinese forces against Japanese troops operating in the western foothills of the Lushan mountains were reported in Kiukiang. A particularly bitter encounter took place Saturday night at Tungkuling, when the Chinese attempted in vain to retake this strategic height. Chinese losses in last week's engagements were estimated by Japanese officers to be in excess of 10,000.

Mahweiling Captured

The fall of Mahweiling removed the last major obtacle in the Japanese southward push, these reports claimed. Located at the junction of the Kiukiang-Nanchang Railway and the Tehan highway, this town was heavily fortified.

Mahweiling fell into Japanese hands at 3.30 on Saturday afternoon as Japanese troops continued a relentless drive southwards from the foot hills of the Lushan mountains. The Chinese collapse was brought about Friday after an all-day determined Japanese attack during which several engagements at close quarters were fought, both sides freely resorting to the use of hand grenades and bayonets.

With their mechanized equipment virtually useless in these operations in hilly terrain, Japanese infantrymen fought one of the fiercest battles since the days of the Shanghai hostilities a year ago. The Chinese, fresh recruits of the student type, put up a gallant stand.

A late message said aerial reconnaissance had confirmed reports that Chinese troops, estimated to number 20,000, were falling back in disorder from Mahweiling toward Tehan. The Chinese were said to be so badly disorganized that Japanese planes were able to machine-gun them from an altitude of 100 metres without being fired upon.

Wusih Court Being Re-organized

Work Started After Train Of Difficulties

After a delay caused by the opposition of the local gentry and members of the Chinese Bar Association to appointees as judges, preparations for the re-organization of the district court in Wusih have begun under the personal direction of Mr. Tsing Liang-kung, the district magistrate, reports from that city stated yesterday.

Mr. Tsing at first entrusted Mr. Tsang Chi-chou and Mr. Tang Luseng, two former judges, with th task of reorganizing the Wusih law court. Mr. Tsang and Mr. Tang however, were forced to abando their task due to the opposition c the Wusih gentry who alleged tha the two former judges had dealt toleniently with arrested armed rob bers, thus indirectly encouraging armed crimes in the district.

Mr. Chang Mei-chieh and Mr. Tong Ying, members of the Chinese Bar Association, then were chosen by the magistrate to reorganize the law court.

Other members of the Bar Association, however, objected to the choice of the two lawyers on the ground that, according to law, lawyers practising in a district should not be appointed to head the law court of that district.

Unable to fine other competent persons to do the work and at the same time urged by the Kiangsu Provincial Government to re-open the district court within the shortest period possible, Mr. Tsing finally decided to take over the re-organization work himself. He will be, however, assisted in the task by two lawyers, Mr. Hwa Hsung-en and Mr. Hsu Yih-ting, according to Domei.

REPRESENTATIVE British Associations in Tientsin held a meeting on August 10 when it was unanimously decided to call for subscriptions in order that a suitable acknowledgment of the services of the 1st Battalion the Lancashire Fusiliers might be made before the departure of the regiment on October 16 when it will complete nearly two years of service here. The associations represented were the China Association, British Chamber of Commerce, St. Andrew's Society, St. George's Society, St. Patrick's Society, United Services (Great War) Association, Zero Club and a committee of officers of each of these organizations was formed. The committee proposes that the presentation shall take the form of a piece of plate, typically Chinese in character, which in future years, will form a shooting trophy for the Battalion; also a writing set for the Officers' Mess made in such a manner as to be a constant reminder of the Battalion's tour of duty in Tientsin.

Good drama and comedy are not easy to combine, but Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Miss Sophie Tucker, Miss Helen Troy and Mr. Ronald Sinclair achieve remarkably in this field, in the "Thoroughbreds Don't Cry" at the Nanking Theatre. The plot is wound about the visit of a British Sportsman, Sir Peter Calverton, Mr. G. Aubrey Smith, to U.S.A. where he brings his race horse for an attempt to win the American Derby. Roger Calverton, Mr. Ronald Sinclair, the grandson of Sir Peter, also comes to the U.S.A. where he soon learns that jockeys are not only a fast but also a rough crowd.

Mickey Rooney is well cast as the swell-headed Timmie Donovan. He is sometimes inclined to overact his role, but one forgets it as soon as he is seen following the race from a tree or coming to congratulate the hero, while the massage he gives to Mr. Ronald Sinclair is really an expert piece of work. The race itself was really thrilling in spite of the fact that one cannot doubt its outcome, while scenes of enthusiasm which followed are well worth seeing, particularly the one where an elderly gentleman swallows his winning ticket when he is congratulated. The two shorts preceeding the picture are fully up to standard, and help to make the show a good entertainment. —M.U.

Mosquitoes And Malaria.

Like many other evil-doers, the malarial mosquito keeps under cover during the day and sets out upon her wicked work after sun-set. Then she proceeds to inject a few malarial germs into each person she bites, and unless the blood of her victim is pure enough, and strong enough, to destroy these germs, they rapidly multiply, and an attack of malaria is the result.

What then is your surest method of defence? Obviously it is in keeping your blood stream rich and red and good. This can best be done with the aid of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, because these pills rapidly increase both red corpuscles and iron in the blood, and thus are an extraordinarily fine blood tonic and blood builder.

Also as malaria causes anaemia, for which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the world's most renowned remedy, they are splendid after attacks of malaria or other fevers, or in convalescence after serious illness, to rebuild strength and restore health. Chemists everywhere sell them.

Japanese Military Lorry Overturns

Several Japanese soldiers and six Chinese coolies employed by the Japanese military authorities were injured last night when a Japanese military truck overturned outside the Civic Centre at Kiangwan.

Driven by a soldier, the truck was conveying the coolies from work, and immediately after the accident another truck which arrived on the scene conveyed the injured Japanese to the Foo Ming Hospital. The six Chinese were then taken to the Chapoo Road bridge where they were transferred to a Fire Brigade ambulance which took them to the Lester Chinese Hospital, where they were detained, with contusions and abrasions.

U.S. Leads Australia 2-0

Riggs Rallies to Defeat Quist While Budge Conquers Bromwich in Davis Cup

Philadelphia, Sept. 4.

IN a stunning display of technique and power, Robert Riggs, American star, ranked Number Five in the World's First Ten tennis aces, smashed his way to an overwhelming victory over Adrian Quist, his Australian opponent, in the challenge round of the Davis Cup here yesterday.

Riggs lost out on his first set, the score being 4-6 in Quist's favour, but after this initial set-back there was not the slightest doubt among the spectators as to who was to be the victor. After starting off well, Quist was disheartened by Riggs' swift rally in the second set, and after this he never had a chance.

The American's driving and placing dazzled his opponent, and the fourth set lasted only fourteen minutes.

Riggs played chiefly from the baseline, forcing Quist to err repeatedly.

His smashing win is regarded as justifying his choice over Grant which was criticized prior to the match.

It was a field day for America yesterday, as in addition to Riggs' sterling performance the Donald Budge—John Bromwich match ended up in victory for the American player, giving the United States two points and Australia nil.

Budge did not find much difficulty in defeating his opponent, scoring 6-2, 6-3, 4-6, and 7-5.

Budge was booed in the third round, when he committed eight faults in succession. The crowd yelled their annoyance.

The final set started off in rapid tempo, the ball whipping to and fro in machine-gun fashion.

Budge took three games, and then Bromwich rallied gamely, but failing to hold the American.—Reuter.

Reds' Stranglehold On 2nd Berth

Wallop Cubs in Both Ends Of Twin Bill as Yankees Lose to Red Sox

New York, Sept. 3.

The Cincinnati Reds took undisputed possession of second place in the National League and gained a full game and a half on the Pittsburgh Pirates by taking both ends of a twin bill from the Chicago Cubs, 6-0 and 7-5.

Ival Goodman's homer started the Reds on their way to victory in the opener, while in the nightcap the Cubs came up from behind to score four runs in the eighth inning to tie the score at 5-5. The Reds, however, scored two more runs in the ninth when Ernie Lombardi cracked out a double with two mates aboard.

The Boston Bees defeated the Philadelphia Phillies by a score of 1-0 in the closest game of the day. The winning run was scored by Vince DiMaggio to help Danny MacFayden gain his twelfth victory of the year.

The Brooklyn Dodgers fought an uphill battle to beat the New York Giants 5-4, twice overtaking the Terrymen with rallies.

Dolph Camilli made victory certain by clouting a home run with one mate aboard.

Pirates Beaten

Led by Johnny Mize, who connected for a double, triple and two singles in four times at bat, the St. Louis Cardinals walloped the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6-0, scoring three runs in the third to cinch matters.

In the American League the pacesetting New York Yankees succumbed to the Boston Red Sox, 9-3, when Lefty Gomez yielded eleven hits in five innings, including four runs in the third frame.

Rookie Krakauskas hurled a great game for the Washington Senators, enabling the Nats to trim the Philadelphia Athletics by 7-0. Krakauskas struck out five while his mates collected three in the second and four in the fourth.

A homer by York with the bases full and another by Pete Fox with two aboard helped the Detroit Tigers to beat the Chisox, 11-4.

Youth Triumphs Over Age at Baseball

Youngsters Beat Oldsters At Race Course

Youth must be served as a team composed of players under 35 defeated a side of over 35 at the Race Course yesterday afternoon in a rare and unique baseball game by a score of 11-6. The youngsters were always in the lead after their four-run barrage in the second inning.

Two home runs were made. They were, however, evenly distributed as Bill Lamneck garnered the first four-bagger for the "babies" and Ivy Riddick slugged the next for the "old men's" team.

The victors bunched their other runs in four innings while the losers, apart from scoring one in the third, grouped their tallies in the last four frames.

Lamneck, Don Beeson, Harry Bernard and Joe Morang pitched for the young ones and no less than five twirled for the elder nine, Jack Riley, Buck Buckoway, Derby Ross, Carl Neprud and Demon Hyde.

Shanghai Makes Clean Sweep In Interport Tennis

Tientsin Puts Up Stout Battle in Five-Set Doubles Match; Collaco Triumphs Over Le Bas

LIVING up to expectations, Shanghai made a clean sweep in the Interport tennis series as its representatives walked off the Shanghai Lawn Tennis Association court with the laurels yesterday afternoon. Before another large gallery of around 500 spectators Tientsin lost the third singles and first doubles in respective order.

Humberto Collaco made short work of Cyril Le Bas, retiring the northerner in straight sets of 6-0, 6-2, 6-0. The doubles encounter, however, went the full distance of five sets before L. D. Carson and W. A. H. Duff emerged victorious. The score read 6-1, 2-6, 6-8, 7-5 and 6-3.

The local Portuguese was not as brilliant in his display as the score would indicate. But he showed consistency in stroking and retrieved in steady fashion. His well-timed placing to the corners and his occasional angular cross shots gave his adversary unending trouble. Collaco lost only two games in the second set, the first and the sixth.

Gordum Lum made a desperate attempt to save a shut-out in the doubles but he did not have good support from M. Ferber. Otherwise Tientsin might have won the match at the end of the fourth session.

Lewis Carson played indifferently in the second and third sets, thereby enabling Tientsin to snatch the lead for a brief period. Shanghai started off brilliantly. Duff won the first game. Lum tied the score before the local pair rolled away five in a row. In these games the visitors simply could not do a thing and were kept in the back court all the time. Lum tried to storm the net but his shots were unable to pass his opponents.

Tientsin Rallies

Over-confidence on the part of Carson and Duff cost them five games in succession. Duff lost his first service, which eventually paved the way to defeat. Lum won his delivery for a two game edge upon which they stretched it to 5-0. Carson came back with his service in the sixth and continued to break Ferber's in the seventh but Duff again faltered to allow the score to be tied at one set apiece.

Sparkling tennis was seen in the third set in which both sides battled for leadership. Lum served successfully in the opening game. Carson levelled matters and so did Duff in the fourth for a 2-2 score.

In the eighth game Tientsin missed a fine opportunity to break Duff's offering. Ferber made a fine return, putting the ball at Duff's feet while the latter strode into the fore court, causing him to net his return. Lum lost a point to Carson but Ferber again surprised the server with an identical stroke to lead once more. An exciting scene developed as the two sides hit back and forth. Shanghai unquestionably were attacking because of having the service. Lum and Ferber worked and worked, trying to push their opponents back. In one of the lobs, Lum lifted the ball too short, for Carson to smash and put the tally at 30-all. Play then reached deuce before Tientsin yielded the next two points for a game score of 4-4.

Lum Serves Well

Lum was still confident of winning and served beautifully to lead forty-love. Duff and Carson banged his delivery several yards out. Consequently, Tientsin had no difficulty to regain the lead by 5-4. The Chinese Davis Cup player served a love game in the 13th and put on a great finish to beat Carson by another love game, Lum capturing three points and Ferber one to make the sets stand at 2-1 in favour of the northern port.

Ferber served first in the fourth set. Lum's clever play enabled the visitors to lead forty-love. But carelessness caused the Chinese to give away two easy shots. Ferber also went wild and the game was lost after deuce. Duff was encouraged by the change of luck and won a love game. The ultimate winners ably kept the two-game lead until 4-2 and then 5-3. At this stage the visiting pair tightened their grip and rallied. Ferber put across several useful services to his opponents' backhand and won the game. Duff lost his for the score to reach 5-5.

A desperate fight ensued in which the local representatives came out on top and deadlocked the set score at 2-2 by a 7-5 tally. With this success, Shanghai blazed through the deciding period in winning fashion, allowing Tientsin to garner the second, fourth and seventh games. The local men treated Ferber mercilessly and used him as a target whenever chance permitted. The score in this set was 6-3.

Swiss Wins World Cycling Title

Amsterdam, Sept. 3.

In winning the race, Knecht pedalled at an average speed of 34,983 kilometres an hour, beating to the post his fellow-countryman, Wagner, and the Dutch champion, Demmeme.—Havas.

Another Shut-out For Orzech

Ace Pitcher of 1st Bn. Also Leads All Batters As Sailors Succumb

Lefty Orzech, ace twirler of the First Battalion U.S. Marines, had the distinction of winning a third shut-out victory at the Race Course yesterday afternoon in one of the closing games of the 1938 Shanghai Baseball League. His victims were the U.S.S. Asheville team, which fell under a barrage of nine runs in a seven-inning contest.

The southpaw also displayed rare form in stickwork when he batted a 1,000 per cent. He made four trips to the rubber, collected a trio of singles and received a free ticket to first. Lefty is almost certain to finish the season's competition not only the champion moundsman but the heaviest slugger among eighty competitors.

Harvey pitched for the sailors, showing occasional flashes for he beat his opposing number in the strike-out route. The loser fanned eleven while Lefty whiffed four less. Harvey's defeat was unavoidable as he failed to receive adequate support, especially from the outfield. Kawarzyk at centre and Volpiansky in right were much too shaky and caused the player on the mound to lose his confidence. As a result, the First nine nipped Harvey for a dozen hits, including a lucky homer by Olie Olsen in the fifth inning.

Lawn Bowls Club Blues Beat Their Brother Reds

Recs Defeat Y.B.C.; Police Subdue H.G.C.; MacDermott Loses at Long Last in League Competition

THE League games which were played yesterday showed victories for the Shanghai Lawn Bowls Club 'Blues' over the 'Reds', the Recs over the Yangtszepoo Bowling Club and the Police over the Hongkew Golf Club. Two highlights of the afternoon were the overwhelming victory of the Recs who produced the seasons biggest league score and beat the Y.B.C. on all rinks and the fact that W. J. MacDermott met his Waterloo at the hands of J. J. Souza thus relinquishing his position as the season's unbeaten skip.

The 'Blues' took 4½ league points leaving their brother 'Reds' with 1½ at the Shanghai Lawn Bowls Club, in a match where the winners were leading throughout the closing score being 86-64. At the 5th end they were 12 shots in the rear. In the 10th C. Richards took a 5 which gave him the edge at that stage of the game but eventually he and W. J. Ward finished all square with 19 shots all. T. Goodman put up a 4 in the 7th but H. Wallace retaliated at the 15th, their rink closing by the narrow margin of 2, 18-16, Wallace ahead. W. J. Monk was the only skip of the 'Reds' to pilot his men to victory, beating T. S. Parry 21-16. W. A. Turnbull won his rink against R. Baldwin with the greatest margin of the match 33-8 he and his men thus taking the prizes which Mr. W. Napier had offered before his departure, four bottles of whisky for the winners by the biggest margin. Something of a tragedy developed later in the eyening when it was discovered that one of the prizes had disappeared. Enquiries are being instituted.

On the Recs ground the Home Team scored 109 shots against the Yangtszepoo Bowling Club's 57 and won on all four rinks taking the full 6 points in the League Table which puts them in a practically invincible position. It should be pointed out, however, that the visitors were without the services of J. E. Harvey and R. C. Aitkenhead. The closest game was between A. Cheetham and G. B. Stormes which was decided on the last end, both sides being 17 at the 20th. C. Thomson in his last shot carried the jack and lay 4 and Stormes drew a further 72 which gave his side the victory by 6 shots.

F. O. Maher started operations with a single, a 3, a 2 and a 7 before his opponents commenced to score. He also produced a 5 at the 20th. T. G. Main came through with the biggest margin 32-14.

Close Game

A much closer game was seen on the Police greens where the Hongkew Golf Club got 2 league points and the Police 4, the margin being 11 shots, 79 shots to 90. A close contest took place between J. Bradley and C. M. Sequeira which ended to the advantage of the former 23-21. J. J. Souza got a good start over W. J. MacDermott with 9-0 at the 5th lead, however, which was more than compensated for by R. Conduit's score over C. A. Periera at the same stage of the game, 11-0. C. M. Maher and J. J. Souza were the visitor's winning skips, R. Conduit and J. Bradley being the victors on the other side.

French Racing Driver Wins Tourist Trophy

British Driver Comes in Second Rainy Weather

London, Sept. 4.

M. Louis Gerard, of France, driving a Delage, won the International Tourist Trophy Race at Donington Park yesterday.

His time for the 312 miles was four hours 31 minutes and 50 seconds, while his average speed was 67.61 miles an hour.

Rain caused M. Gerard's car to skid badly, and in the later stages the car turned four complete circles before stopping after a skid.

Mr. St. John Horsfall, of Great Britain, driving an Aston Martin, came in second, his time being four hours 35 minutes and two seconds, at a speed of 65.45 m.p.h.

M. P. Etancelin, of France, driving a Darracq, came in third, taking four hours 36 minutes and four seconds at an average speed of 76.93 miles an hour.

The International Tourist Trophy is a handicap race.—Reuter.

Giants Facing Drastic Shakeup

New York, Sept. 3.

Indicating that the New York Giants are facing a drastic shakeup, Manager Bill Terry announced today that he was recalling and purchasing a total of fourteen players from the minor leagues.

They will report immediately, Terry added. Ostensibly this routine is being adopted to bolster the sliding Giants in their last desperate bid for the National League pennant.

Sports writers, however, believed that Terry is seasoning the players with an eye to the 1939 pennant chase.—United Press.

Football's Queer Happenings

Topsy-turvy Form Brings Headaches; Aston Villa Shock Supporters

Football is a game of surprises and the antics of the various clubs often reduce the punter to a state bordering on complete insanity especially when he discovers that the much-vaunted home team which, in his opinion, could not possibly lose, has not only lost but has ruined also his chance of netting a tidy sum from the promoter of one of the countless football pools conducted throughout the world.

There were many such punters yesterday cursing their luck in having backed Aston Villa to beat Derby County. No one, judging by recent form, would have conceded the County any chance of winning, especially after the Villa's away win at Grimsby last week, but the Derby side did win and bang went many forecasts. A slip like this might prove very costly to the Villa, who are making special efforts to reach the height of their former glory in the Football League.

Derby, too, are a queer side. Last week they only just managed to share the honours of their home game with the Wolves, and yet they go to Villa Park and steal the Birmingham side's glory. It's a nerve-racking game this football!

Arsenal Held

The mighty Arsenal thundered their way into Yorkshire on Saturday but Huddersfield were not awed by the presence of George Allison's shock troops and held them to a draw, each side scoring one goal. The Fartown side, in the same game last season, defeated the Arsenal by two goals to one.

Charlton Athletic proved that the lesser London sides can win matches as well as the Arsenal when they defeated the strong Leeds United on the Charlton ground. Chelsea, who were beaten at Liverpool last week, came into the picture with an expected win at the expense of Leicester City, who have not had a good season for a long time.

Middlesborough did not play the same trick on their supporters as Aston Villa had done, and their away win at Stoke proved that the northern team are out for honours this season. Middlesborough may prove to be one of the best teams in the league—at least their recent form suggests this—but, as previously stated, football is a funny game.

Manchester Utd. ran up a score of four against Birmingham's one and celebrated their return to the premier division—a celebration which was postponed last week when they lost at Middlesborough. Next week the United visit Grimsby where they may continue this form, although the "fishermen" pulled off a surprise on Saturday by holding Sunderland to a draw at Sunderland. Only a week before Grimsby had lost at home to Aston Villa, and once again, here is an illustration of the topsy-turvy form in English football. Sunderland must have suffered a bad lapse, which needs to be remedied when they visit Derby County on Saturday.

The Wolves could only force a draw in the midland town with their visitors from Blackpool. Probably full of the beautiful ozone for which this famous resort is famous Blackpool surprised even their most ardent supporters by sharing the points. Wolverhampton visit Brentford next Saturday where they will have to show improved form if they are to carry away the points.

Turning to the Second Division, the highlight of Saturday's games was Bradford's defeat of Manchester City on the Park Avenue ground. Mentioned in this column last week as the City's greatest rivals in the promotion race, Bradford pulled off a surprise when they scored four against their visitors' two. So far Bradford have played three matches, of which they have won two and drawn one. Next Saturday they visit Millwall, who went to Swansea and held the Welshmen to a one goal draw.

Blackburn Rovers, as was expected, took the points from their away game with Chesterfield, while Bury walloped Southampton to the tune of five goals to two. Sheffield Utd. could only draw with Newcastle, and Tottenham Hotspur surprised Coventry City when they won at White Hart Lane by two goals to one. Sheffield Wednesday, tipped to win at West Ham, did not disappoint their fans and carried away the honours with a three-two victory.

Rotherham Again

New Brighton defeated Accrington Stanley in the Northern Section although they were playing away. Barnsley knocked out Halifax Town, and as forecast in this column last week, Rotherham Utd. who were tipped as one of the best teams in this section, went to York where they beat the City by one goal to nil.

Scottish Results

In the Scottish League Celtic made reparations for their defeat last week when they scored five goals to Hearts' one. Next Saturday they have a difficult task when the Rangers, who beat Ayr United by four to one, are the visitors. Other results were not in the nature of surprises, except Aberdeen's failure to hold Motherwell who shared the points.—R.S.

Hammond Gets His 100th Century

London, Sept. 4.

W. R. Hammond, the English Test captain, scored his 100th century for Gloucestershire yesterday when he knocked up 116 against Sussex.

Gloucester won the toss and occupied the crease the whole day to score 417 for the loss of seven wickets.

At Scarborough the M.C.C. made 190 for four against Yorkshire, the champions.

Leonard Hutton's home town, Pudsey, has decided to give him a complimentary dinner on October 14 to commemorate his record Test innings.

Hammond, representatives of the Yorkshire County Committee and members of the Yorkshire team are expected to attend.—Reuter.

Stragglers Defeat Seaforths-Durhams

Win by 28 Runs in Low Scoring Game Featured By Good Bowling

The S.C.C. Stragglers, by defeating the Seaforths-Durhams yesterday afternoon on the S.R.C. ground, hold the distinction of being the only Cricket Club team left in the Knock Out Competition after the first round. After being dismissed for the poorish total of 117 in 27 overs, the Stragglers did extremely well to bowl the opposing team out for the even less startling total of 98. L/Cpl. Cheney was outstanding in the Seaforths-Durhams attack returning the fine analysis of seven wickets for 61 runs, while Booth and Duckitt were mainly responsible for the failure of the Seaforths-Durhams defence.

The Stragglers, batting first, lost an early wicket in Heap who was clean bowled by Cheney. Read and Goodwin then became associated in a fairly lengthy stand with the latter forcing the pace and generally scoring most of the runs. Goodwin was the first to go having contributed a useful Booth and Sinclair were the next pair who appeared confidently set and it came as a great surprise when Sinclair calling half-heartedly for a run had his wicket thrown down when he had only scored 10.

Credit is due to the excellent fielding and throwing-in of the Seaforths-Durhams throughout the game. After Lawrence had failed to break his 'duck', Booth and Duckitt proceeded to belabour the bowling in no uncertain manner and the score mounted to a more respectable figure. With Cheney maintaining an impeccable length however, and Aberdein coming off the wicket fairly fast, runs did not come as quickly as they should. When the score read 101 Booth unaccountably mistimed an attempt to pull a short one from Aberdein and presented the bowler with an easy catch. Duckitt continued to bat well and short partnerships with the remainder of his side helped to bring the grand total to 117 before Chadwick was bowled first ball to end the innings.

The Seaforths-Durhams commenced their innings inconspicuously by losing two wickets for 15 runs. Cpl. Thomasson however, in a stand with R.S.M. Bush took the score to 54 before the Army side collapsed before the bowling of Booth and Duckitt. Duckitt bowling at the Pavilion end was coming off the wicket fairly fast and with three slips was turning the ball to the off for slip catches.

An occasional one on the off stump however, proved the most effective. Sinclair made an excellent catch in the slips to dismiss Thomasson and wickets fell regularly thereafter to some deservedly good bowling. Booth varied his attack considerably but claimed most of his wickets with a fast leg break, pitching on the leg stump. The Army tail failed miserably and the match came to a close at 5.32 p.m. with only 28 overs having been bowled.

Begins Tonight with All Receipts for Charity

One of the season's most interesting swimming galas will be held at the Lido Swimming Pool for two successive nights, beginning tonight, at 8 p.m. when the cream of Chinese mermen clash with the U.S. Fourth Marines and the Foreign Y.M.C.A. in two separate exhibitions sponsored by the Lido Recreation Association for the benefit of the Shanghai International Red Cross Refugee Relief Fund.

A total of ten events are on the programme for each night. The city's best swimmers like A. H. Logan, A. J. Gavriloff, R. Hall, G. Figueredo are included on the "Y" team while the Marines will have such stars as Doore, Aikman and Bracken. The Chinese team is made up of the best talent available, mostly Cantonese who were formerly well known in Hongkong aquatic circles.

Mr. John Huxley heads the official list as Referee while Mr. L. F. Bright will hold the important post as starter.

Tickets may be obtained at the main entrance at the Lido and the entire admission goes to the coffers of the Red Cross fund.

London Money Market

London, Sept. 3.

With speculators taking an interest in the rush for gold and American dollars on the London money market during the past week, non-clearing institutions found a good demand for their available lending capital. Borrowers were often willing to pay up to ¾ per cent. for loans against bonds.

Discount brokers obtained their supply of Treasury Bills at a slightly better rate, competition being less than expected.—Reuter.

Bombay Cotton Market

Bombay, Sept. 3.

The improvement witnessed in the Bombay cotton market during the week under review was due to the readjustment of the oversold position.

Little justification, however, for the firmness can be found in the trade outlook, but it was argued that the United States loan should provide a bottom for the market in America. Consequently, the short-side here was regarded as less attractive.

Export business from the Continent and Lancashire was very negligible but more orders were booked to Japan. Confidence was generally lacking.

Reports indicated that holders of Broach contracts sold to Japanese houses, with a proviso that the cotton may not be taken up and paid for before the end of October.

Weather and crop reports were satisfactory.—Reuter.

U.S. Commodities

Saturday's Closing Quotations

New York, Sept. 3.

The cotton market early declined on lower Liverpool and Bombay cables, Southern hedge selling and liquidation. Later, prices further eased on a lack of support, continued uncertainty over the European political situation and local selling. Finally, the market closed barely steady, with quotations ranging from 10 to 15 points down.

Trading in the Chicago Wheat Pit today was a quiet and pre-holiday affair, with evening-up operations much in evidence. Trading was restricted owing to the prevailing belief of an early crop movement and the weakness of Liverpool and Winnipeg advices. At the final bell, quotations ranged from ⅛ down to ⅛ of a cent up.—Reuter.

Saturday's Closing Quotations

New York, Sept. 3.

Stock prices on Wall Street today finished with gains up to about one point. Interest was chiefly confined to estimates of a further rise in steel mill activity. The European situation, however, was still a cause of apprehension and trading remained very light. The turnover amounted to only 360,000 shares.

Dow-Jones Summary

By Courtesy of Swan, Culbertson & Fritz

Experts said that the market today, being momentarily relieved from European pressure, is following the course of major lines of business, in which further gains were reported this week, the sole exception being Department Store sales. Steel mill operations are predicted to touch 50 per cent. of capacity before October. Toledo manufacturers report a slight slackness in employment, which is believed to be a temporary adjustment. There are some expectations that industry will show a sharp upward movement after Monday. However, the market was still plagued by the rail wage dispute.

Car-loadings in the United States

New York, Sept. 2.

Car-loadings in the United States for the week ended August 27 totalled 621,000 cars, according to the weekly report of the Association of American Railroads, which was published today.

This compares with 598,000 cars last week and 787,000 cars for the corresponding period of last year, showing an increase of 23,000 cars and a decrease of 166,000 cars respectively, compared with the figure for the week under review.—Reuter.

Shanghai Real Estate

More Activity Shown In Market

By E. H. McMichael

It is many a long day since I have dared to comment on the difficult and ever changing property market of Shanghai, however, lately there have been so many enquiries that it is possible to once again venture to talk about prices and values.

Many lots have changed hands, and nearly all at bargain prices. A marked preference is shown for foreign residential buildings and occupants, avoiding property with Chinese tenants.

A certain amount of money appears to be available from Hongkong, which has probably had a lot to do with recent activities.

The general trend of sales has been in the Western District and the western end of French Concession, while land within the railway is also in demand and steadily increasing in value. In spite of this though big lots are offered in the French Concession, some of them are forced sales, these can be had at unusually low prices, due to the difficulty of financing on such a large scale. Excellent double road frontage is available in the best residential areas, it seems a tremendous pity that these lots should be sacrificed.

West of the railway is hopeless at present. Many properties have been offered at sacrifice prices, in fact, almost anything to get rid of them, but no sooner do negotiations begin, than a fresh scare breaks out, and everyone feels safer within the perimeter. I have heard of no sales in this area. The attitude of the country farmer owner is a strange one, they maintain a "pre-incident" standard of values and carry on with their old "take it or leave it" principles. This is an attitude truly hard to understand, as their crops can only be worth 30 per cent. of normal value, due to shortage of labour, Ta Tao taxation, etc., whilst their homes are in ruins and everything should point to a natural method of recouping by selling.

Inside the railway and west of the settlement boundary has been extremely active lately. A great deal more confidence has been shown, due undoubtedly to the unceasing guard of the British Troops defending the area. Long and short term leases of land have found ready buyers, and prices in this area have risen in some cases over 200 per cent. in six months.

At first, leases were mostly for coffin repositories and small factories, but, thank Heaven, our City Fathers are now preventing or curtailing this menace to a residential area. At present the majority of leased land seems to be for the storage of cargo, erection of a moderate class of Chinese dwelling, shops, and a few lumber yards.

Fortunately for residents on Great Western and Tunsin Roads a great portion of the land is held by one or two wealthy Chinese who are unwilling to lease or sell under present conditions.

Leased land in the Western District of the Settlement and French concession is at a premium and is extremely hard to obtain, and in these areas, Municipal control is very strict so that industrial enterprises have to be considered carefully in order to avoid permits being refused.

Prices of leased land concluded and offering. In all cases land taxes are extra.

Berlin Bourse

Berlin, Sept. 3.

The share market on the weekend was extraordinarily firm. This was attributed prominently to the relaxation of tension in the international political situation. Moreover, selling orders ceased to be placed by industrial firms to raise liquid funds for current needs. Provision seems also to have been made in good time for meeting the quarterly taxation payments due next week. Moreover on quarter day, October 1, interest on bonds and securities falls due and the prospects of these receipts had already the effect of easing the market. Besides this, bank customers placed small buying orders while operators instead of unloading as usual at weekends, actually bought more stock. The volume of business was greater too than in the last few days and increased in the course of the day.

The most eagerly sought shares were minings the prices of which rose accordingly, Harpers for instance advancing 4½ to 142. Electrics were also in brisk demand Siemens & Halske rising 3 to 187. Lignites, rubbers, Reichsbanks and many others were also firmer.

On the fixed interest securities market, the turnove rkept within narrow limits but the main trend was friendly. Reichs Old Liquidation Loan rose ⅛ to 129⅝. Provincial loans tended slightly weaker. In industrial bonds, Dye Trusts rose ⅛ to 122, and Harpeners ⅛ to 113.

Call money stood at 2⅜ to 2⅝ per cent.—Trans-Ocean.

"Deficiency of information in Japanese English-language newspapers is completed very successfully by an English newspaper in Kobe The Japan Chronicle . . on its pages can often be found criticisms of the political and economic actions of the Japanese Government and various other information which gives the opportunity to observe and to analyse the Japanese economic situation. In addition to the usual material obtainable from all the Japanese English-language newspapers. The Japan Chronicle gives a very detailed and comprehensive review of the foreign trade of Japan. It regularly prints statistics pertaining to Japanese exports and the state of the home market."—Extracts from U.S.S.R. Chamber of Commerce Journal.
